And four want to be Carmel mayor

Standing on their platforms

Candidates for Carmel City Council present their platforms in interviews with the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook this week. Although eight seek election to two open city council seats, most of the attention in this election is focusing on the heated mayoral campaign as two-time incumbent Charlotte Townsend is challenged by world-famous actor and director Clint Eastwood, businessman Paul Laub, and Tim Grady, an environmental singer. Clockwise are: Eastwood, Townsend, Laub and Grady. (Holly McFarland photographs.)

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Letters to the editor are welcome. Views on all matters are acceptable, following the guidelines of good taste. While there is no limit on length, brevity is encouraged. Letters are subject to editing for style and length. Each letter must contain name, address and signature. A phone number is needed for verification only. Anonymous letters are not accepted, but names of letter writers may be withheld upon request.

Hold on to mayor

Dear Editor:

Reviewing the qualities claimed by Mayor Townsend's opponents reminds me of those "confined to a short list of saints or a long list of sinners." It would indeed take a saint to satisfy all the desires of citizens and would-be business entrepreneurs. The urge to change the excellent conditions that prevail in Carmel to one's own desires seems to be a universal failing. The changes in Carmel proposed by the candidates would produce their heaven on earth if they themselves were elected to occupy the mayor's chair.

I've always considered myself a cautious and conservative individual, and as such subscribed to the adage, "A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush." When you've got a top mayor who really works on the job, hold on to her; to paraphrase the Smith-Barney ad — "Charlotte makes progress the old fashioned way — she earns it!"

Carmel residents are knowledgeable and concerned citizens and often critical of city officials. But they know and appreciate a good mayor when they have one, and after four years of testing, they recognize Charlotte Townsend's record of accomplishments.

Charlotte has appointed excellent public-minded citizens to serve on the city's various commissions and boards. In her four years of mayoral service, she has been instrumental in appointing an administrative staff that any city, large or small, could be proud of.

We have a city council composed of members who are well informed in their respective fields and who are not afraid to voice their opinions. Charlotte has shown admirable administrative ability in securing from them a cross section of opinion without temper flare ups — not an easy task. This has resulted in decisions by the council that further the qualities that continue to make Carmel a desirable residential city; for instance: a recreational program, senior citizen housing, Carmel beach rehabilitation, Scenic Avenue walkway, planned Devendorf Park restrooms, remodeling city hall, including computerization and the library annex plans that are underway.

Both Paul Laub, who just moved into Carmel, and Clint Eastwood, have been enjoying the benefits of Carmel's excellent business opportunities for many years. But neither, to my knowledge, has ever offered to serve on any city board, commission or committee to assist in keeping the desirable balance between Carmel's residential and business interests that our present mayor and city council have maintained.

Mr. Eastwood's opinion that merchants have been considered as "Carmel's second-class citizens" by the city council isn't borne out by the record. In her first term the mayor formed an ad hoc committee of five business people and five residents to discuss cooperation between the two groups. By the enactment of stringent controls and other actions to preserve the unique ambience of the town, the business community is benefited. The resulting beauty of the city certainly is one reason visitors are interested in coming here.

Charlotte has been quoted out of context when it is said she is against business. According to the Carmel Business Association Newsletter of March 1986, the following is a list of business in Carmel who are apparently happy to be located here:

Sixty restaurants, 67 galleries, 40 jewelry stores, 27 stores selling food, 38 hairdressers, 50 inns, 40 actual gift shops, 50 stores with gifts, 87 apparel shops, 415 miscellaneous retail shops.

What the mayor has advocated has been controlled development with emphasis on quality stores and residentially-oriented ones.

A lot has been said about tourism in Carmel. It doesn't make much difference whether the mayor or Laub or Eastwood or Grady are for or against tourists. Carmel, being the attractive city it is, is going to have them. The revenue they generate does help to pay our 30-man police force and the other heavy administrative costs of our postage-size one-mile square city of less than 5,000 inhabitants.

Opponents of the mayor raise endless complaints about the lack of parking facilities for their business customers. As a matter of fact, the only central parking the town possesses is the north side of Sunset Center which can handle 125 cars. But the area is no haven, for by 9 or 10 a.m. It's filled (with a generous overlap into the residential area) with cars of the business operators and their employees.

The pressure is applied to the mayor and the city council to build a three-story garage at Sunset to park another 250 cars. Is it reasonable to ask the people of Carmel to shoulder the $5 million cost it would require to finance such a project?

Choice is clear

Dear Editor:

Doonesbury, national TV, gun-totin' images, international coverage — who needs it? Is this a mayoral election for Carmel-by-the-Sea or a three-ring circus? Can anybody seriously consider the issues or the candidates in such an atmosphere? Does anyone really think that things will change after the election if a celebrity wins?

To me the choice is very clear. Only one candidate, Charlotte Townsend, has a comprehension of and a fidelity to Carmel-by-the-Sea's original purpose: to be a residential village. One of the local Monterey Peninsula hobbies is taking cheap shots at Carmel and its leaders. But the fact is that Carmel-by-the-Sea sets environmental and cultural standards that few cities can match — and Charlotte Townsend stands tall in her efforts to preserve its unique and much-admired charms.

Her record is impressive: fighting offshore oil drilling; protecting the city's zone of influence; limiting commercialism; sensitive beach restoration; purchase of Mission Ranch and adjoining wetlands; support for reclaimed water; protection of city forests; support for Rowntree Arboretum.

And what's more, she has the time, the accessibility and the serious interest in the city's very real problems — problems that will never be solved if there is a TV camera or gawking movie fan on every city street corner.

Kudos to Schmitz

Dear Editor:

If there has been any perceptible improvement in the governing of the City of Carmel in the past four years, most of the credit belongs to Douglas Schmitz, city administrator, whose dedication, intelligence and great good humor make it a pleasure to do business with city hall. His contract should be reviewed, extended and salary increased forthwith. But turn the rascals out!

EDITOR'S DESK

BY MAC McDONALD

Ain't it grand?

HANG ON to your hats folks, we're rounding the corner and headed into the last two weeks of what is quite possibly the most unusual and closely watched election in our country's history.

If someone had written a script for this roller coaster of an election and tried to shop it around Hollywood, he'd get laughed out of every Tinseltown film studio. "Who'd believe it?" "Ridiculous!" "Don't call us, we'll call you."

Yet here we are only 12 days away from the election heard 'round the world, one that has piqued interest and curiosity from Japan to Sweden, from the Wall Street Journal to People magazine, from ABC, CBS and NBC, to television networks from Italy and Germany.

We've seen innumerable articles, columns and news stories, some good, some bad, some just plain ugly. But who can blame them? It makes good copy.

Some people have criticized and decried all the media attention, the mad dash scramble to get this story out to an obviously hungry public. Some say it detracts and demeans the election.

I for one think — to borrow a favorite phrase from Mayor Charlotte Townsend — it's grand.

It's grand because an unprecedented number of people are getting involved in the democratic process in Carmel. It doesn't really matter what their initial motivations are, people are getting involved, informed and excercising their rights as citizens. The more the merrier I say.

It's grand because the people of Carmel are availing themselves of the issues — all the issues. The issues are coming to the forefront and are being heard ... and discussed ... and debated. Apathy has been made a distant memory.

It's grand because the rest of the world now knows that the people of Carmel — and every candidate — care deeply about the unique character of this little village and will fight to keep it that way.

It wouldn't be an understatement to say that this is the most important election in the city's history. I urge every voter of Carmel — if they haven't already — to listen to all of the candidates, give them all your serious consideration. Go to the forums, read the newspapers and campaign literature, watch the forums on television. Make a decision and vote. Carmel deserves it.

Ain't it grand?

(Editor's Note: As of today, Thursday, March 27, we will no longer accept any letters concerning the election or the candidates. We will try to print all the letters we've received so far before the election.)

DAVID MARADEI

David Maradei

DAVID MARADEI, the Carmel Post Office station manager and former forestry commissioner, seeks his second term as councilman April 8.

Maradei, who has lived in Carmel for almost a decade, serves as the city representative to the Association of Monterey Bay Area Governments, is on the Community Human Services Project board and is on the Carmel Beach Rehabilitation Task Force.

PEBBLE BEACH GATE

As far as Maradei is concerned, the study on closing the North San Antonio Street access gate gate has produced sufficient rewards to warrant a $5,000 consultant fee.

The Pebble Beach Co. has opened another lane on weekends to move traffic through quicker; tourist buses and trucks are required to use the Carmel Hill entrance, and the company is working on a plan to relocate the gate 50 yards deeper into Pebble Beach.

BOB FISCHER

Bob Fischer

Fischer, now helping with his wife's business called SlotTrek tours, served the Carmel Police Department for 31 years until his retirement in early 1985.

BEACH WALKWAY

One of Fischer's campaign pledges is to leave the Carmel Beach and Scenic Road alone.

"I want the beach to remain as it is. I don't think we want any cement structures down there. It's a beautiful beach."

Fischer especially is concerned about the loss of 54 parking spaces that would be removed to make way for the walkway.

He did say that the present council did a "marvelous job" on phase one of the beach repair project, which armored the cliffs against winter storms.

ROBERT STEPHENSON

Robert Stephenson

ROBERT STEPHENSON will ask voters to return him to office April 8.

Stephenson, a building designer and four-decade resident of Carmel, is seeking his second four-year term as city councilman.

BEACH WALKWAY

Stephenson supports the plan for a beach walkway along Scenic Road.

He said the walkway is included in the general plan and it is "an extension" of the overall Carmel Beach rehabilitation project that is supported by the majority of residents.

"I think the walkway is important," Stephenson said.

CITY-BUSINESS RELATIONS

"I don't think that the animosity that is talked about is really as serious as it's made out to be."

ROBERT WEBER

Robert Weber

ROBERT WEBER, a self-described "environmental poet," is one of eight candidates seeking election to the Carmel City Council April 8.

Weber, the son of noted photographer Al Weber, is a member of the Environmentalist Party.

As part of the interview, Weber authored one of his poems to indicate his concern about Carmel's environment. Titled, I Am That. I Am, the poem goes:

"I beg your pardon, but I'm in God's Garden/Where there's cars, bars and ruled by Mars/It just doesn't seem fair to have to choke and wheeze on all this polluted air/What do I say about Spanish Bay?/Instead of all those useless golf courses we should all be riding horses.

Don Lampson

DON LAMPSON, a four-year-resident of Carmel, is making his first attempt at elected office.

MISSION RANCH

Lampson questions whether it is wise for the city to spend millions of dollars to acquire a piece of property when there are projects still needed in town.

"A lot of these things turn into grandiose projects. They should be doing other things first that will help the citizens," he said.

Some of these "other things" are public restrooms, fixing the streets and a ramp entrance to the library for the elderly and handicapped, Lampson said.

Elinor Laiolo

ELINOR LAIOLO, a retired public school administrator, is making her first bid for elected office April 8.

Laiolo, the wife of former Carmel Mayor Barney Laiolo, is one of eight candidates seeking election to the Carmel City Council.

CARMEL RIVER DAM

"I think the city should become involved in the water management district (committee) that is studying the feasibility," Laiolo said. "I think we need a larger dam."

Laiolo does not subscribe to the proposal that new development should pay most of the costs of a dam.

"It seems appropriate that users of a facility should pay for it," she said. "I think all of us should pay for it...I think it's needed. It's needed by those of us who are here."

Tom May

TOM MAY, a former Carmel City Councilman, will once again try for elected office April 8.

May, a personal finance asset manager, served on the council in the late 1950s, but lost a close bid for re-election. He is one of eight city council candidates.

PARKING PROGRAM

"A parking facility at Sunset Center is a reasonable proposal if it is a first step in a larger parking program to make local service trades more competitive," he said.

"My approach will be to compare a costly facility at Sunset — an awkward location — with a series of scattered parking lots that either are bought or leased," May explained.

May added that he wants to ensure that the city does not "overspend" on the parking facility at Sunset Center. He wants to com-

ANNE WOOLWORTH, an interior designer and resident since 1953, is one of eight candidates for election to the Carmel City Council April 8.

Woolworth, who unsuccessfully bid for council election 10 years ago, is a past member of the planning commission and general plan advisory committee.

PARKING PROGRAM

Woolworth is opposed to the Sunset Center parking facility, believing that a large garage is out of character in Carmel.

"I just don't think it's suited to our small town," she said.

Instead, Woolworth proposes that the city revamp its existing timed spaces, including setting aside the center slots on Junipero Avenue for employee parking for a fee.

She also thinks that the 20-minute spaces in the middle of blocks (such as on Junipero

Being forced out

Dear Editor:

When I first moved to Carmel in 1981 I had nothing but my artistic talent and a sleeping bag. I began sketching the people and scenes on the peninsula and opened my second gallery in Carmel 1½ years ago. Last year I grossed $30,000.

But all that was with pay as you go, as my credit in Oregon was not transferable. Now when I try to get a small business loan of $500 to $2,500, I'm turned down by my bank and two other banks and a credit union.

If only they knew how difficult it has been using a mat cutter I made with $20 worth of wood. My serigraphs I produce on a $200 homemade table complete with a vacuum top made with a vacuum cleaner. When I produce my water-based serigraphs from a $300 investment in paper and supplies, the edition soon sells out. But I can't go on without some capital and am being forced out of business because of high rent.

It's O.K. to loan $100,000 to a shoe shop on Ocean Avenue, but what about a serigraph studio?

James Ogle

Who pays for parking?

Dear Editor:

How many people know the following facts and figures about Carmel? What follows is in reference to traffic and parking only.

- Fifty thousand (yes, 50,000) vehicles travel into Carmel during peak hours of a a peak season. Most of them have destinations in the central six-square block area of the downtown business district.
- On peak days 150 to 200 tour buses may come to Carmel. On other days, there are 20 to 30 tour buses every two hours.
- At least 3,000 Carmel workers rely on private automobiles to get to their work place daily. Assuming 5 percent carpool with other workers, approximately 2,850 employee cars enter the city each day to park on the nearest residential or business district streets.
- The Carmel Plaza provides about 100 spaces. Rarely is it filled to capacity.
- About 120 to 140 cars now park at Sunset Center daily. If a three-story parking facility were to be constructed, only an additional 242 autos could park there. The cost for this structure was estimated in September 1983 to be $3.9 million. This includes landscaping around the perimeter, not on top.

The questions one must answer are:

If a parking facility were constructed would you pay to park there? If a parking facility were constructed would you expect the business community to pay for it, the residents, or both?

These are questions to be asked and answered when one hears of talk of forming a parking district.

The problem of maintaining the predominantly residential character of Carmel is nothing short of colossal. May I suggest that it is better to act slowly, even ploddingly, rather than rush into a decision we will regret forever.

In view of the above, I think Carmel residents should recognize the weight of the situation we and our mayor and council are faced with. Their dedication is commendable in the extreme.

Jane S. Mayer
Carmel

Proud of mayor

Dear Editor:

Poor Carmel! National and international media attention plus Garry Trudeau and carpetbaggers! It is frightening to think about what is happening to our precious village.

Regulations, although causing some to gag, help to maintain the unique quality of this place. Carmel is attractive because it dares to be different. Check out commercial rents if you are told that property owners are in jeopardy.

A person was heard to complain about tax dollars being used for litigation costs. Successful litigation (and Carmel has had successful litigation) is helping to protect our uniqueness. That quality will be gone and irretrievable when Carmel looks like every other California community.

Most citizens only come in contact with city government when they have a complaint of personal interest, attending only the meetings dealing with that particular problem. Unfortunately, there are no simple answers since what affects one answer impacts on other subjects. Experience is a necessity and simplistic answers don't solve problems. Good government is a slow process — a mix of patiences, perseverance and compromise.

I am proud of Carmel's mayor, Charlotte Townsend, who personifies patience, perseverance and compromise. Her accomplishments have brought dignity to the city and to the office. She is respected by the mayors of the Monterey Peninsula, and other city and county officials. She has represented Carmel's interests very well.

Charlotte has also had her share of derring-do, being a top tennis player and skier. She loves to sail and has crewed in the Trans-Pacific sailboat races. In days past, she raced Porsche automobiles.

Charlotte is a very special caring person — a lady in every sense of the word — who is concerned about her home town. If you are also concerned about our community, hullabaloo and election rhetoric aside, she deserves your support for another term as mayor to see completion of city projects already underway.

Special consideration

Dear Editor:

We are fortunate this year to witness and decide one of the most interesting community elections anywhere. Thanks to the incumbents for all they have done for us; and to the challengers who have brought the final vote count into question and some of the issues into finer focus. Carmel is the final winner regardless of the outcome because so many talented individuals are willing to give their time and energy to the city.

One incumbent deserves special consideration. Perhaps it is because he defeated me four years ago that I have watched him so closely.

David Maradei has matured in office and has contributed mightily to Carmel by his thoughtful, even loving, approach to city problems. David has carefully maintained good communications and taken decisive stands in his erudite columns in The Pine Cone. He is an approachable, intelligent, hardworking, and obviously devoted councilman. I hope he is re-elected.

It's 1986, not 1929

Dear Editor:

As a Carmel voter for some 40-odd years, I have seen Carmel as a sleepy little village — we hunted, fished, and rode horseback where streets and houses are now. We did all our shopping in Carmel and saw only a few tourists in the summer, mostly from San Francisco. The city was the center of our life. But, like other cities, Carmel has changed and, like it or not, there is no way Carmel can ever be that quiet little village it once was.

Today Carmel has become two separate areas — residential and city. Over the years this city has become strictly tourist-oriented. Ordinance No. 96 passed in 1929, when applied to the city, is no longer a valid statement and we should stop trying to be a 1929 city-in 1986.

It is too late to "give back the city" to the people. So let's run the city as the business it is — keep it beautiful, clean and fun. Run it smoothly, efficiently and profitably. Give the tourists a bathroom and a place to park. Enforce strict residential laws governing our trees, streets, building codes and beaches.

No one wants neon signs and hot dog stands, but we should appreciate the local businessmen whose shops provide jobs, tax dollars and the energy and vitality that fuels the community.

I believe we have an opportunity to tap the talents of a man who loves Carmel as much as any of us and who can bring the residential and business interests together into a smooth harmonious community — Mr. Clint Eastwood.

Wrong party penalized

Dear Editor:

When we moved to Carmel 16 years ago, Em Le's restaurant had already been in business for many years. Why, after all these years, has the Carmel Planning Commission suddenly decided that the restroom facilities are inadequate?

Instead of giving Mr. and Mrs. Crank, the owners, an arbitrary 60-day notice, why weren't they informed of this when they applied for a business permit? If a code violation exists, it appears that the wrong parties are being penalized.

Anita Pietsch
Carmel

Fear vs. faith

Dear Editor:

Townspeople vs. tourists? Residents vs. merchants? No, these are not the issues in the Carmel election. If they were, then every candidate would be on the same side. Why? Because tourists and non-resident merchants cannot vote in Carmel.

The real election issue in Carmel is fear vs. faith, mistrust vs. trust. Fear is a powerful but dysfunctional emotion. Charlotte Townsend draws much of her support from the fear that election of any other candidate would destroy the charm and beauty of Carmel. This fear has for too long dominated elections in Carmel. As a result, a pallor of mistrust, dividing resident from merchant, permeates the town. This is the pallor that Clint Eastwood seeks to dispel.

A vote for Clint Eastwood will be an act of well-placed faith — a positive, healthy belief that residents and merchants will work harmoniously under Clint's leadership to perfect a community that is almost, but not yet quite, perfect.

Ron Weitzman
Carmel

Responsive to citizens

Dear Editor:

The following letter is written by me as a Carmel resident for 72 years and as a former city councilman.

Carmel's coming election will be the most important in its history. It is hoped that it will be decided on the issues involved and not on the personalities of the candidates, however charming or abrasive they may be.

The election will present a crystal-clear issue to the residents of the village. That issue is whether rampant tourism and commercialism will finally complete the conquest of the village — or whether the voters will return the incumbents to office thereby permitting them to continue their efforts to preserve what charms Carmel still retains.

The incumbents running for re-election are Mayor Townsend and Councilmen Maradei and Stephenson. Their record in office shows a love of Carmel and a desire to keep its unique residential charm.

Contrary to unsupported allegations, the present city council has been more responsive to the desires of Carmel residents than any council in recent memory, through questionnaires, plebisicites, citizens committees, and through its implementation of Carmel's General Plan prepared, over many months, by a representative citizens committee.

For 57 years, Carmel's most eloquent ordinance has expressly stated that the village is "determined to be primarily a residential city wherein business and commerce are subordinated to its residential character." This ordinance represents the very heart and soul of Carmel. Furthermore, this ordinance stares persons right in the face when they open businesses in Carmel. If the ordinance is enforced, as to them, they have no basis for complaint or surprise.

If Carmel residents are not vitilant at this critical moment, I am apprehensive that the quoted ordinance is in danger of being changed, in practice, to, in effect, read "Carmel is determined to be primarily a tourist or commercial center wherein its residential character shall be subordinated to the dictates of those who believe that the village exists for the sole purpose of commercial exploitation."

Keeps his commitments

Dear Editor:

There have been letters that have portrayed Clint Eastwood's character as being that of those he portrays on television. This is absolutely wrong; his personal life is entirely the opposite.

I have personally known Clint Eastwood for over 20 years and would like to state that his personal life is the direct antithesis of his movie characters. Clint is basically a quiet, sincere man who does not want publicity.

When the City of Carmel purchased Sunset School from the school district and converted it into Sunset Center, the gym was not in use. The police department received permission from the city to use it as a recreational gym for the young boys. We appointed a board of directors from residents of the city to govern its operations. Clint Eastwood was one of the citizens asked to serve and he agreed. As long as the gym was in use, until it was closed down (the city decided they had other uses for it), Clint Eastwood took time to attend board meetings regularly as well as drop in at the gym to see the youngsters and to check on the operation.

It was stated in one of the letters that he would not have time to serve as mayor of the city if he was elected. This is not only an unfair but a rash statement and it shows they know but little or nothing of the true Eastwood. Clint is a man who will arrange his schedules to encompass any commitments he has made.

When I was the national president of the FBI-NA Association, the southern section of the California chapter was having a regional meeting in Ventura, and for the final banquet they needed a speaker. The president of the state chapter, knowing Clint Eastwood lived in Carmel, asked me to see if he would be our speaker. He was asked, and he accepted. He drove to Ventura and made a remarkably fine presentation for us. He then spent a couple of hours, after the dinner was over, conversing with the people who wanted to meet him personally. He was very courteous and friendly and nothing like the letters portrayed him. He then drove back the next morning in order to compete in a charity tennis match at Pebble Beach that afternoon.

Does this sound like a man who does not have the time to do the things he is interested in?

During my tenure of over 25 years as chief of police of the City of Carmel, until my retirement, one of my duties was to attend all council meetings. This gave me the opportunity to observe many councilpersons over this period of time. There were many excellent ones and some mediocre.

If the voters of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea elect Clint Eastwood as their mayor, they will find that he will fall into the category of the excellent.

Bulldozer garage

Dear Editor:

Twenty or so years ago, the city acquired 20 lots on Junipero, Torres and Fourth, and had prepared architectural plans for a civic center. The design available for view at the building department provided for all city offices, and underground parking, and was, I think, a magnificent concept. Perhaps the finest site in Carmel: the plans included a council chamber which likely looks direct out to sea and Point Lobos.

Only the police and public works departments were built, and the lower garage houses, I believe, street maintenance equipment. Apart from the police department, the appearance is a public disgrace. No citizen could get plans approved and abandon a project when half finished.

But the biggest shame is the utter financial waste. The land alone must be worth millions. A bulldozer garage? If given a chance, maybe private money would complete the beautiful design to council approval, and lease the offices to attorneys and architects as offices, and thus bring revenue to the city.

I suggest candidates for the council election might comment.

Does he really care?

Dear Editor:

Did anyone hear Arthur Frommer, noted travel writer/critic, on Owen Spann's KGO talk show Feb. 27? Frommer told Spann he no longer advises his readers/listeners to visit Carmel because it is too commercial. When told by Spann that Clint Eastwood was running for mayor of Carmel, Frommer said he hoped, if Eastwood won, that he would work to decommercialize Carmel and help rid it of tourist-type businesses.

That does not appear to be a likely possibility. According to a Feb. 26 San Francisco Chronicle story, Eastwood "criticized the Carmel City Council for alienating the business community with strict growth controls." That attitude smacks of encouraging tourism, commercialism, and all the attendant evils which Mayor Charlotte Townsend and the council have been working hard to overcome.

In addition, the article quoted Eastwood as saying that he "decided to run for mayor after the Carmel City Council refused to let him build an addition to his restaurant." Does this sound like a candidate who really cares about Carmel?

I think not.

Keep the gate open

Dear Editor:

Clint Eastwood's stand against the closing of the Carmel gate on San Antonio Street to Pebble Beach traffic is well taken.

We live in Pebble Beach and drive to Carmel via San Antonio Street for general shopping and eating in the fine restaurants. If we Pebble Beach residents are forced to add to the already congested Ocean Avenue and Holman Highway to get our groceries and do our general shopping, I for one will investigate the many stores and eating places in Pacific Grove and Monterey. I imagine we will learn to like them too! rather than hassle with added Carmel traffic and difficult parking.

Here's hoping the final decision will be the sensible one — keep the gate open!

BEHIND THE LINES

BY MICHAEL GARDNER

Mapping out the votes

I REMEMBER when I lived elsewhere I would always try to figure out where the real Carmel was. I assumed there was no there, there.

"There" was officially incorporated as Carmel-by-the-Sea. Not to be confused with Carmel Valley, Carmel Rancho, Carmel Woods, Carmel Point, Carmel Highlands or Mission Fields. You get the point.

Anyway, lots of folk are about as confused as I was back then. They simply do not know whether they live in the city limits. There are even some instances of driveways being within the city and homes in the county.

Thus, if you lived in your car or out on the street I guess you could vote.

Anyway, for the bewildered, the Monterey County Elections Office on Election Day, April 8, the county mapping technician, June Payne, will be down at city hall available for anyone with questions about whether they live in the city limits.

SPEAKING OF...

Speaking of residency, the League of Women Voters of the Monterey Peninsula is moving slowly on its check of registered voters.

According to President Lorita Fisher, the league has found enough "puzzling" registrations to begin at least calling addresses to ensure valid registrations.

Fisher would not say how many names are being checked, but promised to have solid information by next week, just days before the election.

FREE SAMPLES

County Registrar of Voters Betty Bloomer says that if you haven't received your sample ballots by now, better stop checking the mailbox and pick up the phone.

For a sample ballot or any question regarding voter registration, call the county office collect at 424-7621, she advises.

FIRST ORDER OF BUSINESS

We've all heard those "If I were in charge" boasts, but let me say this about that.

If I were in charge, my first line item in the 1986-87 city budget would be a decent sound system for public meetings — and ensure someone is there who knows how to operate it.

The one in city hall works just fine (of course my ears are only 30 years old).

But following the campaign circuit around, the sound systems emit piercing noises, go dead at embarrassing times and generally frustrate a public wanting to know more about their candidates.

The lack of proper amplification also can lead to misinformation.

For example, at the Carmel Citizens Committee forum last week, Anne Woolworth was talking about the proposed parking facility when all of a sudden the sound system up and died.

Local media, myself included, thought we heard her say that she supports a parking facility at Sunset Center. But in reality, in a voice merely a whisper because of no sound, Woolworth said she opposes such a facility.

My apologies to Anne.

I think mayoral candidate Clint Eastwood, who has thrice been befuddled by poor public address systems this campaign, said it best during a talk before the Carmel Board of Realtors.

Without a microphone in sight, Eastwood cracked, "I would like to congratulate the realtors. They have solved the problem of the public address system. They removed it."

A new sound system would also help out during those non-election year town forums everyone promises, but rarely has.

MEDIA MANIA

Just had a half-hour discussion with the San Diego Union about the media mania that has descended on Carmel like a herd of tourists on the T-shirt shops. The conversation took place in between calls from the Sacramento Bee and a television station and a visit from Newsday.

So I got to thinking, someone should thank Robert Priestley for his polite gentlemanly handling of the media during the citizens committee hearing last week.

Priestley did the local community a service by insisting that the media be held at bay so the voters could hear (when the sound system was working) and see their candidates.

LEAVE IT TO PAUL

When the out-of-towners do come around, Paul Laub is always the one to go to for a spicy quote that livens headlines and allows reporters an easy justification for their expense accounts.

I think Laub got in one of the better quips of the campaign during the realtors' session when he approached the microphone, took a noticeable look at Eastwood and said, "This is the talent phase of this beauty contest."

Let's hope folks look at the issues and not the personalities when they go to the polls April 8.

PRIME TIME POLITICS

Tired of the media crowds? Want a nice quiet evening with the mayoral candidates so you know which hole to punch for mayor?

Then just settle into your favorite easy chair, put Rover on your lap, pour a glass of chablis and tune in the television.

KSBW-TV (NBC, Channel 8) will present a live one-hour mayoral forum from 8 to 9 p.m. Saturday, March 29.

Not only will you get to see the most interesting assortment of mayoral candidates — Clint Eastwood, Charlotte Townsend, Tim Grady and Paul Laub — but the Pine Cone's own publisher, Bill Brown, is one of the three media panelists doing the grilling.

Brown promises hard questions, like "What iron would you use on the 17th at Cypress?" (Yes Bill, I'll have those questions ready in the morning.)

But wait, there's more. If you're one of those who would rather boogie at The Club than play couch potato on a Saturday night, tune in Monday.

Rival KMST (CBS, Channel 46) will screen a taped forum from 9 to 10 p.m., Monday, March 31. Taping will be at 7 o'clock. In addition to seeing star Eastwood, you'll catch more than a glimpse of one of Monterey Life's eligible bachelors, the Pine Cone's managing editor Mac McDonald.

THE GOOD HUMOR MAN

Planning staff at city hall presented City Administrator Doug Schmitz with a not-so-much-of-a-surprise surprise birthday party Thursday afternoon.

But the real "scoop" followed when Planning Director Diane White unpacked a gallon of Dreyer's ice cream for the gathering.

Even Mayor Townsend, who just earlier in the morning had tried to press on the Carmel Board of Realtors that it's okay to eat ice cream cones in Carmel, took time out for a break.

My only complaint was that they forgot the cake, but happy birthday anyway Doug.

CAMPAIGN WINDFALL

Council candidate Robert Fischer has come up with a new way to raise campaign funds.

Fischer was in Reno Tuesday with his wife's SlotTrek tours when he had to fly back to make it to the Carmel Citizens Committee forum.

The jangling in his pockets later that night was $200 in silver dollars.

Does he have to report that as a campaign contribution?

By NANCY HILLS

EM LE'S restaurant will not have to close due to a lack of restroom facilities, the Carmel Planning Commission decided during its meeting March 19.

The commission also voted to approve a use permit for a jewelry store on San Carlos Street but had two other items, a use permit for Nature Company on Ocean Avenue and the expansion of Great Things Antiques, continued until its April 9 meeting.

The planning commission unanimously decided one restroom was sufficient for Em Le's, a 35-year-old breakfast and lunch cafe on east side of Dolores Street near the corner of Fifth Avenue.

Em Le's owners, Kenneth and Marie Crank, who bought the restaurant two years ago, were given 60 days by the planning commission on Feb. 26 to find a way to provide bathrooms for their customers or the city would revoke their business license.

The city received a complaint last November that Em Le's had no restrooms for its patrons. Restaurants are required by municipal code to provide restroom facilities for "both sexes," an ordinace the commission said was for new businesses.

A restroom is located in the kitchen of Em Le's, but it was only available to employees. Two other facilities were located in the courtyard outside of the restaurant, but one is blocked by an electrical panel and the use of the other was denied to Em Le's by landlord Anthony Compagno.

Compagno said it was for the use of other tenants and he would not open it up for the restaurant's customers. Kenneth Crank told the planning commission Em Le's previously had use of the restroom but that use had been taken away by Compagno after a dispute over who was keeping it clean.

After the planning commission gave the Cranks 60 days to work out an agreement, Compagno told Carmel Code Enforcement Officer Mary Jahr-Purvis the only option he would agree to was for the Cranks to build another bathroom in the courtyard next to Em Le's. He said he would not reopen the courtyard restroom to Em Le's customers or move the electrical panel.

Jahr-Purvis asked the planning commission March 19 whether the use of a single restroom would be sufficient. Crank pointed out that many other older restaurants in Carmel use only one restroom.

Commissioner Sandy Swain expressed her concern that the planning commission was receiving the blame for a problem that she felt was between Crank and his landlord.

"I was afraid to go to the post office for two days after this came out," Swain said.

Though Commissioner Thomas Nash agreed with Swain that it was a landlord-tenant issue, he said he would not vote for the one restroom because he did not want to "let the landlord off the hook." He would vote to allow the use of the single restroom for 60 to 90 days to give more time for a settlement.

Carmel Planning Director Diane White told Nash that the city had been working with the applicant for a "couple of months" before it even reached the commission and that the situation probably would not change.

The planning commission determined that the ordinance applied to new restaurants and the continued use of one restroom in Em Le's was approved unanimously.

• The Nature Company and Great Things Antiques opted for a continuance of their respective use permit applications because there were only five commissioners present at the meeting. Commissioners Arthur Mertens and Gene Hammond were absent.

• Linda Ferrari received a use permit for Ricky's Jewelers on San Carlos Street between Fifth and Sixth avenues. Ferrari is purchasing the shop.

Flanders Mansion inside Mission Trail Park but he is certain of the first step.

"What I would do is get all of the interested people together to see how their ideas will benefit everybody," he said.

"I think we should do the most we can with it, whatever it is we do with it," he said.

CITY-BUSINESS RELATIONS

Lampson wants to bring back a sense of community to the town; a "howdy and shake" atmosphere is the way he describes it.

To accomplish this, Lampson proposes that the city host more public functions and celebrations, such as a "bathroom party" when restrooms are developed at Devendorf Park.

He thinks council meetings should be like a "business lunch" where issues are chewed over in an informal atmosphere.

By "lightening up," Lampson said the city would create a "sense of enthusiasm where we will all jump in and work together," including businesspeople and residents.

And Lampson would like to see "mixers" where city officials and business people can meet and talk about issues in an informal atmosphere.

BEACH WALKWAY

"I think maybe the walkway is a good idea but I would give it a low priority," Lampson said.

CITY FINANCES

Lampson promises to bring his personal money management philosophy to city hall. That philosophy is:

"I'm a cheap person. I'm a tightwad. It makes me mad to spend money unless it's something I'm sure I'm really going to enjoy."

CONSULTANTS

Lampson doesn't like the expense of all the consultants hired by the city and questioned the validity of paying for the advice.

"It's like a $25 haircut that costs $5 and you think it's five times better because it cost five times more," Lampson explained.

SPANISH BAY

"I think if Spanish Bay is going to cause us problems, after they cause the problems is the time to get heavy with them," Lampson said.

Lampson believes that thus far there is not enough proof that Spanish Bay will have such an adverse effect to warrant lawsuits.

He does not see Spanish Bay as having such a "catastrophic" effect that it cannot be mitigated afterward.

ODELLO DEVELOPMENT

"I think the Odellos have been here long enough. They've paid their dues, so to speak," he said.

"We can talk to them and listen," he said.

Lampson proposes that the city negotiate with the Odellos to develop part of the property and set aside another section as a park.

CARMEL RIVER DAM

Lampson supports the proposed Carmel River Dam and said that the city should work with the assessment district participants.

"When it comes to doing something that will do the city some good they should be willing to chip in some money and energy," Lampson said.

SECOND KITCHENS

"Never say never and never say always," is how Lampson feels about the second kicthen issue.

Lampson does not have a position established on legalization of the units.

"I think that it is one of the most emotionally hot issues that faces the residents of the community. I don't see any easy solution," Lampson said.

"Honestly, it's something where I just throw up my hands...I don't know," he said.

LIBRARY EXPANSION

Before trying to expand, Lampson wants the city to first make the existing library more accessible to the elderly and handicapped by building a ramp.

He says there's no rush to build an annex.

"The wheel hasn't fallen off the car. We don't have an emergency on our hands. We should do what is best for the most people."

LOCAL BUSINESS

Lampson doesn't have a strong program to encourage more resident-serving businesses.

"To start with I wouldn't make a mad rush

coastline," Laiolo said. "I think it will attract more people."

Laiolo said it is "unfair" to reduce parking by 54 spaces because many elderly people like to watch the sunset from their cars.

"I kind of like it the way it is," she said of Scenic Road and the beach.

SPANISH BAY

Laiolo said she would withdraw the city lawsuit and open negotiations with Pebble Beach Co. to ease traffic congestion on Highway 68.

ODELLO DEVELOPMENT

Laiolo thinks the city should drop its lawsuit aiming to control development on the Odello property because of traffic and water concerns.

As for the 162 units proposed, Laiolo said, "I think it would be acceptable."

SECOND KITCHENS

Laiolo sees legalized second kitchens as a tool to provide more affordable housing in Carmel.

She favors city controls on health and safety, but does not want any rent controls enacted.

CITY-BUSINESS RELATIONS

"Improvement starts with listening and hearing what the concerns of the business district are," Laiolo said.

CITY GRANTS TO CBA

Laiolo supports the city providing some kind of financial grant to the Carmel Business Association.

"I think the CBA works in a supportive and positive fashion for the city. A contribution from the city is one way to work with the business," she believes.

"As long as the business community is working so adequately for the city. It's give and take," Laiolo said.

FLANDERS MANSION

"I think it's a white elephant for the city," Laiolo said. "It's not paying for itself. Maybe it should be gotten rid of."

Laiolo said she would want to see the reports on the costs of maintaining the mansion before making a final decision.

Laiolo added that the city should sell the Martin Way properties that are not contiguous to the park.

HATTON CANYON FREEWAY

"I think it would be a nice addition to the area."

LIBRARY EXPANSION

"I have always found that any entity works best when it's all under one roof," Laiolo said.

"I think that the possibility of digging down under the front garden has not been explored enough. I think that would provide a fair amount of space," she continued.

"If that possibility is there, I would rather see that happen than an annex."

She favors selling the Sixth Avenue and Lincoln Street corner if the annex is not developed.

PARKING PROGRAM

Laiolo supports a parking facility at Sunset Center.

She opposes buying any more property within the city to provide additional parking.

MISSION RANCH

"I am opposed to the methods that have been used to attempt to acquire Mission Ranch," Laiolo said.

She said personally she opposes purchase of Mission Ranch, but if the people indicate support for buying the site she would vote for it.

"If it were under city ownership, I see it as a nice recreational facility," she added.

GAMBLE ESTATE

Again, Laiolo criticized the council for how the property was acquired.

She did not like the city talking about density controls because that just scared away potential competition for purchase of the property.

And she said the council bought the site without "letting the people of the community be involved."

Laiolo added that the homes now on the Gamble property are large and out-of-scale to the rest of the community.

MISSION RANCH

May generally supports a plan for the city to buy or at least annex the Mission Ranch property.

"Carmel has a duty to protect the quality of living in our residential areas through rules against overbuilding in addition to defending homeowner property rights and property values," May responded.

"We have rightful concerns about the wetlands and the historical dairy farm. We have to be vigilant about the Mission Ranch because someday the area will annex to Carmel."

CARMEL VALLEY MASTER PLAN

May supports city efforts to ensure proper planning in Carmel Valley.

"A big concern in and about Carmel is choking traffic, including that at the mouth of the Valley. Our roads can't handle more traffic growth so we must do what we can to alter it," May said.

"This lawsuit against the county is getting good results. Very shortly we'll have a new Carmel Valley Master Plan that suits our needs. Then the lawsuit can be dropped."

ODELLO DEVELOPMENT

May prefers that the Odello development be kept within the new county growth guidelines.

"Odello has a right to build houses east of the highway so long as there is consistency with normal county rules on water and traffic. I see no reason to continue the lawsuit if the county agrees on that."

SPANISH BAY

"This lawsuit against the county will be settled on traffic matters. It is not against development of the hotel as people think," May said.

May believes the city should hold out for improvements to Highway 68 so there is a quick emergency access to the hospital.

"As soon as the county agrees to change the roads at the Hill Gate so an ambulance from Highway 1 can get through heavy traffic the lawsuit will be dropped. What Carmel has done is protect the rights of the people in and around Carmel," May said.

SECOND KITCHENS

May offers what he believes is a "fair and reasonable" approach to solving the second kitchen situation that "got out of hand."

He said, "a lot of homeowners depend on extra rental income. Where there is no on-site parking we should look at a rule to abate the second kitchen in, say, 20 years. Existing owners may keep the second kitchen longer than 20 years until the title changes. Homeowners need time to adjust."

FLANDERS MANSION

May promises to look at all solutions to what to do about Flanders Mansion, but for now he leans toward opening a youth hostel there.

"What most people don't know is that a youth hostel is a good neighbor. The guests are carefully chosen in advance of arrival and are never present in the daytime. The premises are locked up tight between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. There are a number of other uses I will not overlook."

CARMEL RIVER DAM

May does not plan to support the Carmel River Dam until after all the facts are available on costs and who will benefit from the new water supply.

"My style is to have an old-fashioned hardnose look at agreements to spend tax dollars. We can't go ahead until all the facts are in and get tight guarantees on water rights," May said.

"I am a counter-trend type of person. I will bargain sharply for the best interests of the people, both residential and business, in Carmel on money matters about the dam."

BEACH WALKWAY

"My tilt is toward both low-key land[redacted]ing and low-key walkway," May said.

"What I do not want to see in Carmel, despite its beauty, is a Pacific Grove-style promenade. That is just not the style that's Carmel as far as I'm concerned."

On the parking issue, May said he would design a narrower walkway to minimize the loss of spaces.

CITY-BUSINESS RELATIONS

May said to improve city-business relations, there has to be an understanding on the part of the council of "the nature of business."

He also thinks a council must "respect" business people as "the mainstay of our system."

CITY GRANTS TO CBA

May would support a city subvention to the Carmel Business Association (CBA)"providing it is subject to public review."

"I think it has to be something that contributes to the overall benefit of Carmel. I'm willing to listen. I'm willing to consider it."

HATTON CANYON FREEWAY

May said council support of the freeway should be considered in view of future annexation.

"It seems to me to be a mistake to have statewide traffic on a highway splitting the spatial integrity of an expanded city limits," May said.

The freeway poses major problems because it will adversely affect the property values of the homeowners in Hatton Canyon. But widening Highway 1 will drastically reduce property values for those fronting the existing roadway.

May promised to make an "intense investigation to make a fair judgment" on the highway before choosing which side to take.

Robert Weber

about evolution!'/If you have no faith in this poor waif, I'll find out on April the 8th."

Weber also pointed out that it does not matter what he thinks as a councilman — the real issue is what the public wants.

Weber proposes that all issues of development be placed before the citizens for approval.

BEACH WALKWAY

"I think it is something the city is developing just because they think the elderly want it. It would be like a boardwalk in Santa Cruz," he said.

CITY-BUSINESS RELATIONS

Weber thinks it would be a good idea for the city to find out how the business community feels about certain issues.

"They don't talk to them (merchants). The city should ask them what they propose, what they think would be best. That will open the lines of communication," Weber said.

SPANISH BAY

Weber supports the city lawsuits against the county that seeks to block development of the Spanish Bay resort.

"I'm definitely not for all that development," he said.

ODELLO DEVELOPMENT

Weber said he would like to sit down and talk with the Odellos.

CITY LAWSUITS

Although he supports the Spanish Bay lawsuit, Weber said he is not a proponent of going to court.

"It's like a little kid crying 'I'm going to tell daddy on you,' " he said.

CARMEL RIVER DAM

"It's a matter of what the people want and what the city needs. I oppose it myself, " he said.

ATTRACTING LOCAL BUSINESS

To bring more resident-serving business to town, Weber proposes that the city "open up" and give the shops breaks from city-imposed controls and fees.

PARKING GARAGE

"If the people want it, I'd certainly make sure it has safe routes to it," Weber said.

"It's the people's vote. If I say yes or no, it's the people's vote," he said.

FLANDERS MANSION

Weber does not want the city to make any changes at Flanders Mansion inside Mission Trail Park.

"That's one of the last remaining places

Stephenson said he likes the idea proposed by one restaurant owner that calls for the formation of a special advisory group made up of business people.

"It makes good sense...It's certainly worth exploring. I'm sure the city would consider it," he said.

The only reservation he has is that the advisory committee not become a "pressure group" to push for more business in town.

CITY GRANTS TO CBA

Stephenson does not want any city funds provided for promotion should the council in the future make a financial contribution to the Carmel Business Association.

"If I thought they had more local usefulness, yes, I'd support them. Too much of their material is aimed at attracting visitors," Stephenson said.

HATTON CANYON FREEWAY

Stephenson supports construction of the freeway, but only as far as Carmel Valley Road — not to Rio Road as now planned.

He said Rio Road is crowded only because the Valley traffic uses the street to avoid congestion on Highway 1.

R-4 DENSITIES

"My loose reaction — without making careful study of it yet — would be to support it," Stephenson said of the plan to reduce densities in the multiple-family residential zone.

CARMEL RIVER DAM

Stephenson opposes the dam as now planned.

"The dam is just an effort to get water for more development. If that's the purpose of the dam then I am not in favor of it," he said.

"If not having a dam would preclude development then I think we would be better off without the dam," he continued.

Stephenson reasons that if a new dam allows more development, thus more people, more people will use more water and then even more water will be necessary so another dam would have to be developed.

"If we don't build a dam and we don't develop any more, we will survive," he explained. "If the dam creates more development we'll just be right back where we started from."

SECOND KITCHENS

Stephenson said he would like to see a policy of not allowing new second kitchens and ensuring that the existing units meet current health and safety codes.

Stephenson said in most cases he is opposed to rent control, but favors such a measure on second kitchens because "if you don't put a cap they won't be serving the kind of people you want to serve."

LIBRARY EXPANSION

An ardent opponent of the library annex, Stephenson for years has supported building a new facility at Sunset Center.

Stephenson said "I'm not very happy" with the annex plan because "they're building an inadequate library at this point."

If an annex is not constructed, Stephenson said the city should sell its corner property for residential development.

PARKING PROGRAM

Stephenson wants a three-level parking garage at Sunset Center.

Financing methods, which need to be explored, include a parking assessment district, he said. Or, the city could lease the property to a private developer to build a facility and charge fees for parking spaces.

Other proposals by Stephenson include removing the white loading zones in front of businesses and the truck delivery parking spaces.

"Trucks don't park in them anyway for the most part," he said.

FLANDERS MANSION

"I can't see spending that amount of money (estimated at $350,000) to repair it," Stephenson said.

"We haven't found a really satisfactory use. We have a use now (renting the mansion) that seems to be moving along without causing too much trouble," he said.

Stephenson would like to see the youth hostel proposal revived.

"I was in favor of the youth hostel. I thought that was a mistake to turn that down. If it would come back I would still be in favor of it," Stephenson said.

Anne Woolworth

Avenue and Mission Street) can be eliminated.

Mini-parks that take up two parking spaces could also be reduced, she said.

A shuttle bus proposal "has a lot of merit" and should be considered, she said.

Woolworth also wants to restrict the hours for truck deliveries to help ease congestion downtown.

MISSION RANCH

Woolworth is an ardent supporter of city purchase of Mission Ranch and promises to do all she can to help Carmel obtain control of the site.

BEACH WALKWAY

Woolworth supports the beach walkway plan, but she wants to see if there is some way the path could be narrowed to minimize the loss of parking spaces.

CITY-BUSINESS RELATIONS

"I don't think relations are that bad," Woolworth said. "The business people I know seem to get along with the city."

Woolworth said she would like to see more merchants get involved in city affairs.

"It would be nice if the business people had more time to come to council meetings and planning commission meetings so they know what's going on," she said.

CITY LAWSUITS

Woolworth said it "amuses" her that two mayoral candidates (Clint Eastwood and Paul Laub) have been so critical of city lawsuits when they themselves have sued the city over their own developments.

As far as the Odello development suit goes, Woolworth said she supports the legal action because overdevelopment on the property will "deeply affect us."

Woolworth also supports city attempts to force proper county planning through legal action concerning the Spanish Bay resort in Del Monte Forest.

"Everything that happens on our borders affects us," she said.

CARMEL RIVER DAM

Woolworth said she wants to see the environmental impact report and fiscal analysis before she determines whether to support the proposed Carmel River dam.

She does, however, tend to support the smallest dam proposal that would provide drought protection for current residents rather than allowing for more development.

Woolworth added that an expensive dam may not be necessary if Cal-Am would clear the silt that has settled on the bottom of the existing reservoirs.

SECOND KITCHENS

Woolworth thinks that the plan to legalize some units and place controls on second kitchens is "a good common ground."

She also thinks the city should crack down on transient rentals so that those units can be rented to permanent residents.

LIBRARY EXPANSION

Woolworth thinks that the present annex plan is "sensible" in view of the budget constraints. She pointed out that an addition could always be constructed later.

FLANDERS MANSION

"One of the problems is that it's in a residential district," Woolworth explained.

"I think the neighbors should be considered," she added.

CITY GRANTS TO CBA

Woolworth does not think the city should provide financial aid to the Carmel Business Association.

"I should think they would want to keep their own independence," Woolworth said.

"I don't think we need it. We have so many tourists coming to Carmel already," she said.

HATTON CANYON FREEWAY

Woolworth opposes the Hatton Canyon freeway, saying that the council should endorse a plan to widen the existing Highway 1.

Bob Fischer

CITY-BUSINESS RELATIONS

"I don't really see a problem with city and business," Fischer said. "I think this is a fallacy built by the present city council."

Fischer said the business community has just as much stake in Carmel as the residents. Shopkeepers want to maintain the ambiance and charm of the town.

But he does say that what is needed is "a feeling of friendliness by the city structure and perhaps a little more listening on the part of the city."

CITY GRANTS TO THE CBA

Fischer supports a city subvention to the Carmel Business Association.

"It doesn't have to be a great amount. I think the CBA should be supported. It's basically our chamber of commerce," he explained.

"It's just an information bureau for people who come into town. For the city to ignore an information bureau is ridiculous."

SPANISH BAY

"I would hope we would be permitted to get on with the discussion of Spanish Bay," he said.

Fischer called the development "purely Pebble Beach business" and said the city should become involved in the Highway 68 Task Force rather than suing.

ODELLO DEVELOPMENT

Fischer called the lawsuit against the Odellos "absolutely ridiculous."

"Why don't we just sit down and talk with them?" he questioned.

However, when asked what he would like to see developed there as a maximum, Fischer said, "I haven't seen the plans...I really don't know."

CARMEL RIVER DAM

Fischer thinks the city should be participating in a special assessment district studying the dam.

"There's an awful lot of water that flows out that river out to the ocean being wasted," he pointed out. "Even when the river is seemingly dry it's still flowing out to the ocean underground."

Fischer said a new dam should be financed by the sale of bonds and perhaps have Ft. Ord join in the benefits of a dam to obtain federal help.

He also promotes conservation. "All areas should be in water conservation. I'd like to see it state-wide, not just peninsula-wide," he said.

SECOND KITCHENS

Fischer supports legalization of second kitchens as a tool to provide more affordable housing in Carmel.

Fischer said city controls, however, should just focus on keeping the units up to health and safety codes.

He does not favor rent controls on second kitchens.

BUSINESS CONTROLS

Fischer supports one of the city's most controversial ordinances, known as P-1-4, which greatly restricts the numbers and types of tourist-oriented businesses.

"Yes I do. There's an abundance of these types of businesses," he said. "I favor firm controls in the business area. I am not in favor of no growth but I am in favor of firm control."

MORE LOCAL BUSINESS

Fischer believes that the city can help bring back resident-oriented businesses by providing breaks on the fees charged.

For example, Fischer would like to see local businesses exempted from the in-lieu parking fees.

He called the decision to charge in-lieu fees to Books Inc. "asinine."

"You have to make it appetizing to them," Fischer explained. "A lot of people are scared off because of the in-lieu fees."

PARKING PROGRAMS

Fischer proposes a Sunset Center parking facility built to the San Carlos Street level with a park on top to "hide it."

He would pay for the facility with a bond issue. As far as a parking assessment district, Fischer said, "I would not throw it out, but it would be a last possibility."

Satellite parking facilities with a shuttle bus service also should be explored, he added.

LIBRARY EXPANSION

Fischer does not support paying city funds to expand the library because half of the patrons do not live within the municipal limits.

Instead, Fischer questions how many books are "deadwood" that could be removed and stored. With the computer system it would be easy to retrieve any books sought by patrons, Fischer said.

"I think the library is adequate for residents," he said.

Fischer wants the county to build its own library at the mouth of Carmel Valley.

If an annex is not constructed, Fischer favors using the northwest corner of Lincoln Street and Sixth Avenue for parking or selling the city-owned lots.

MISSION RANCH

Fischer maintains that the city must either buy Mission Ranch or annex the property so

SANTA CATALINA SERVICE LEAGUE'S EASTER PARADE

The Service League of Santa Catalina School held their annual Spring Fashion Show and Luncheon Saturday, March 15. A sell-out crowd of 325 attended the event, which was held in the Santo Domingo Dining Room on the school's campus.

"Easter Parade, A Children's Fashion Promenade" was the theme chosen for this year's event. One hundred seventeen children from Santa Catalina's pre-school and lower school (grades one to eight) modeled fashions from 10 local children's stores. Kathleen Geisler (Mother Goose) and Dorothy Kirk (Father Goose), with the help of 22 "Mother Hens," were responsible for coordinating all the children, including taking the children to the stores to select the clothing modeled in the show.

Anne Pratt, president of the service league and co-chairman of the show, developed the seven tableaux in which the children appeared: Easter parade, musical, sporting, small world, party, pairs, first communion. Carol Benton was the choreographer.

Maryann Dickie was chairman of decorations which featured Easter baskets filled with fresh flowers on all the tables, quilts from the Quilts Ltd. shop in Carmel adorning the walls, and an array of stuffed animals from The Peter Rabbit and Friends shop around the Dining Room and on the stage. The stage was designed by Mrs. Pratt in the form of a child's room.

An elegant luncheon of poached salmon, asparagus, French new potato salad and chocolate pate was served. Barbara McCormick and Patricia Vance were the food chairmen. All the food was donated by parents of the school's students.

Twenty-four local businesses donated prizes for the raffle including a trip for two to Mazatlan, Mexico.

Chairmen of this year's show were Anne Pratt and Bebe Mikdadi. Committee members were: Donna Adams, Sheila Alexander, Carol Benton, Maryann Dickie, Linda DiDonato, Gail Factor, Kathleen Geisler, Phylis Harkless, Dorothy Kirk, Marsha Lee, Barbara McCormick, Nancy O'Keefe, Patty Paulsen, Kristen Searle and Patricia Vance.

All proceeds from the event will benefit Santa Catalina School.

DAR MONTHLY LUNCHEON

Members attending the March luncheon and business meeting of the Commodore Sloat Chapter of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution were privileged to hear a talk by one of their "own," Mrs. Harry F.H. Jones. Mrs. Jones, former Chapter Regent, is now a director of District VI and at the state conference in Los Angeles three weeks ago was elected to the position of Organizing Secretary for the California State Society.

As always, Mrs. Jones held everyone's attention as she covered the DAR activities, aims and resolutions. She also noted with pride that the NSDAR complex of buildings in Washington, D.C. is the largest in the world owned by women. Of special interest was the presence at the state conference of NSDAR President General Mrs. Walter H. King of Washington, D.C., which gave added importance to the event according to Mrs. Jones and Mrs. William Gooley, chapter regent, who also attended. In fact, nine members from Commodore Sloat Chapter went south for the event.

Mrs. Gooley called the meeting to order and thanked luncheon chairman Mrs. David Lohr and her committee for preparing the delicious lunch which they had served. The committee included Mrs. Isham Linder, Mrs. Jill Russell, Mrs. Charles Kahr, Mrs. Robert Holmes and Mrs. Orval Polk. Table decorations as suggested by chairman Mrs. John Radin were pieces from members' personal and varied collections and served as conversation instigators in the rare instances of lapses in chatter.

Mrs. Thomas Elston, chapter chairman, Insignia, gave her report on the current status and order of the assorted insignia worn by and available to DAR members.

Mrs. Gooley reported on the state conference and noted that Commodore Sloat Chapter had come in first in the state in increased membership, lineage research and feature story, not to mention a national award for outstanding yearbook. The chapter also received several seconds and honorable mentions.

RED CROSS OPEN HOUSE A SUCCESS

The volunteers of the Carmel Red Cross Chapter thank all the people who helped and contributed to the success of the St. Patrick's Day Open House.

The generous donations of the restaurants and bakeries and volunteer bakers were much appreciated and thoroughly enjoyed by all the visitors to the chapter.

Volunteer contributors included Marjorie Timmins, Heidi Addelman, Martha Wright and Sue Addelman.

Those businesses that shared their specials were: Adams Too, tea and coffee; Bud's Pub, green cheesecake and dinner for four which was won by Alan McEwen; Chutney's, Derby Dream Pie; La Playa, chocolate raspberry torte, Cashew Roka Gadeaux, German Pecan Coconut Pie; La Patisserie Juliette, strawberry cake; Hector De Smet Bakery, teacakes; The Gold Fork, strawberry cream cake; Zeph Despart, wine; Katy's Cottage, lemon meringue pies, kiwi pie; Little Swiss Cafe, cheesecake; General Store, wine; Pine Inn, chocolate cake and almond cakes; Village Corner, lemon meringue pie; Pablo's, chocolate Mexican mousse; Monterey Bakery, cookies and sweet rolls.

Em Le's, rhubarb pie; Barbara Podoloff, green art paper for invitations; Scandia Restaurant, cheesecake; Swedish Restaurant, Swedish cake with peaches and cream; Thunderbird Bookshops, cookies; Clam Box, dinner for two won by Connie Laub; Wishart's Bakery, assorted cookies; Hog's Breath, lunch for two, winner Marjorie Timmins (whose dessert entry also won her lunch for two at the Patisserie Boissiere); golf for two from the Rancho Canada Golf Club was won by Elizabeth Taylor; Hansel and Gretel candies, one pound of candy; La Boheme, cheesecakes. A most grateful thank you to all.

BUSINESS BEAT
BY NANCY HILLS

Tough times

WITH ALL the interest in Carmel's election, I think I could probably write about the grass growing and no one would notice. Things seem to be slowing down a little. Are people holding off buying or selling their businesses until the votes are in? Could be, but it could also be me. Sunshine and springtime, you know.

JOG TOGS

The Treadmill in The Crossroads has changed hands, going from Cafe Central owners Herb and Tara Evans to Simon Rothhouse and Deborah Koval. Both, Rothhouse said, are newly arrived from Pacific Palisades in Southern California. Rothhouse said he was a men's clothing wholesale buyer and she was an administrator for medical and dental offices.

No big changes are in the works — just "going to make it better," Rothhouse said.

DICK SCHOFIELD of Independent Realty Associates in Carmel is starting Buyer's Realty to exclusively represent buyers in property transactions. (Nancy Hills photo.)

"We'll add some more hi-tech lines for tennis and running shoes and expand our active gear and running clothing," Rothhouse said.

The store sells accessories for aerobics, running and swimming and biking (pedal type, not Harleys). Accessories will be coming soon, Rothhouse said.

He said he's looking at April or May to get some of the new things in.

PARADISE, LAUB AND COUNTRY STORE

Ascot on Ocean Avenue in Paul Laub's Paradise building (on the corner of Ocean Avenue and Dolores Street) has closed its doors after three and a half years. Figuratively speaking, anyway. As a part of a mini-mall, technically it doesn't even have doors of its own.

Owner Marga De Vries said she could not sign the lease Laub offered her because there were stipulations she found not to her liking.

The lease she said, had penalties for employees eating and drinking in the shop and if it opened late. It also included a rent increase.

De Vries owns another Ascot shop in Danville (obviously not Ascot on Ocean Avenue) where she works.

Laub (who is a candidate for mayor as is Charlotte Townsend, Clint Eastwood and Tim Grady), said that De Vries' lease was no different than the one she bought when the store opened and that there was no rent increase.

"I haven't increased the rent in five years," he claimed.

Well, whatever happened, De Vries said she is sort of looking for another space in Carmel, if the rent isn't too high and the location is right.

You might have noticed a few signs at Laub's Country Store on the corner of Ocean Avenue and San Carlos Street. Laub said he would close the store March 31 to revamp the place. He's even putting in a fireplace, not something I would expect to find in T-shirt shop, but then I'm always ready to try something new.

The change will include some "upgrading" of merchandise — it will be the same thing only better, Laub said.

Along with the new merchandise and look, Laub's Country Store will get new management. Laub said he has hired a management firm to run the store so if he is elected, he can devote his time to running the city. If he's not elected, Laub said he'll just go on vacation. The management firm will take over win or lose.

MORE STITCHES

Marina Lange is creating something other than new clothes designs right now. She's getting together her new space on Seventh Avenue between Monte Verde and Dolores streets. Lange has moved her alteration and dress designer shop, Stitches from Dolores Street near Fifth Avenue to the new location and hopes to be open around April 1.

Lange said she is going to continue doing what she's done for more than 20 years, custom design women's clothes and alterations both men and women.

JOANIE'S GOING

Joanie's on Ocean Avenue has sold its space to Talbott, Inc., owner of Talbott Ties. Talbott plans to expand its shop next door into the little shop's 200 square feet.

Joanie's is actually Dorothy's now, since Dorothy Whelan bought the place last year. Whelan also owns Dorothy Whelan Boutique on Lincoln Street, which used to be Joan Winters Boutique, but from what I understand, she's keeping that shop going.

If you followed all that, I'm better than I thought.

THE LAMPS WILL STAY

One in, one out and one staying.

Mr. and Mrs. Monty Harrington, owners of Harrington Interiors on Carmel Rancho Lane, are retiring, daughter Barbara Stephan explained, but she will stay in a portion of the space to conduct her own interior design business.

Stephan said she's been an interior designer for 12 years. She will also continue to sell some of the items Harrington Interiors sold, especially the "unique lamps" the store was known for.

The remaining space is going to Maureen Morford, who will start her own interior design business. Last year, Morford received a use permit for a space in the Court of the Fountains in Carmel for an interior design business. But, as with so many good intentions, that went by the wayside, so now she is opening on Carmel Rancho Lane.

WHAT'S COMING UP

Dennis Rowedder has applied to city of Carmel for a use permit at Le Cochon Laque on Dolores Street near Ocean Avenue. The restaurant has been empty for several months...Michael Montana has applied for use permit for a dress and shoe store at Wishart's Bakery on Ocean Avenue. I'm assuming Montana won't be up at 4 a.m. baking bagels and cookies to go with the clothing...Kenny and Tina Fukumoto, owners of Robata Grill in The Barnyard and former owners of Shabu Shabu in Carmel, are taking over what used to be Rory's in Carmel Rancho Center. Recently, the space has sported the name Doc Mason's but ole Doc never got off the ground and the name is all that remains. Fukumoto said he doesn't exactly know what they're going to do with it, but it won't be Japanese food. The space is owned by Sam Garzone.

INDEPENDENT BUYERS

Dick Schofield of Independent Realty Associates on Dolores Street said he's putting together Buyer's Realty to represent buyers' rather than sellers' interest in real estate transactions. It's not active yet, he said, but will be soon.

The buyer will pay the fee rather than the seller.

The business will be for the purchase of homes, businesses, commercial properties, lots — any kind of property, he said.

When the seller pays the fee, the agent is working for him or her rather the buyer, Schofield said. That's even if the buyer has come to the agent, and the courts have taken a dim view of that lately.

Independent Realty recently did rather well when one of its agents, Yvonne Nordhoff, was a part of the more than $3 million sale of the Monterey County Bank building on Via Nona Marie.

CARMEL POLICE REPORT
BY OFFICER GREG LINDSEY

Community relations

The date, August, 1976. The place, the employee parking lot at Marriott's Great America. You are in your seventh week of basic Police Academy training at the Criminal Justice Training Center in Santa Clara.

Just about the half-way point in the 16-week course. Unfortunately, you aren't even close to the half-way point in this, one of an interminable number of laps you have run around this parking lot. Marriott's thinks big. This lot is about the size of the state of New Hampshire. They could build an international airport here and have room left over for the entire Monterey Peninsula.

Your mind strays to the class you had today on public relations. All four hours of it. That's it, just four hours out of 16 long weeks of the most fun you've had since Basic Combat Training.

Police-Community Relations wasn't a big topic in the mid-seventies. As rookie cops we were taught that police departments have community relations officers. They bear the burden of passing the word and trying to heal the wounds caused by unpleasant contacts between the police and the community. Still on the downswing from the radical sixties, we were taught that the police were regarded as a sort of necessary evil by the general populace, so "Don't Expect Any Medals, Kid!" Times have indeed changed.

For the past several years, one of the major goals of the Carmel-by-the-Sea Police Department has been an overall increase in emphasis on community relations. The department is fortunate in having an excellent working relationship with the community as a whole, but we are mindful that continued ongoing efforts are necessary to preserve this relationship.

Carmel-by-the-Sea is a small, close-knit community. In this sort of environment, individual and "personalized" service is a possibility for police officers. This is something simply not seen in a large city, where officers dash from one call to another and seldom have the opportunity to spend the extra few minutes that make the difference.

The Carmel-by-the-Sea Police Department has initiated a number of new programs to serve the community. These include the distribution of Neighborhood Watch information from door to door, presentations to local civic groups, footbeats, business security checks, and Neighborhood Watch presentations to citizen groups.

Officers have put a great deal of effort into making as many positive contacts as possible. In my academy days we were taught that the only contact the average citizen has with the police is as a result of a traffic violation. Hardly what one would call a "positive" experience for the citizen OR the officer. Contemporary thinking places a lot of value on other types of contacts, which are achieved through the types of activities mentioned previously.

The members of your police department take a great deal of pride in the quality of service they provide to the community. During the past year, officers made every effort to make this personal involvement known to as many citizens as possible, residents, merchants and visitors alike. During 1985, officers contacted 259 local residents and distributed material ranging from burglary prevention to tips on marking valuable property. Officers walked 621 individual footbeats in both the business and residential areas, in the process finding 109 open doors and 80 open windows. In the business district alone 206 individual business security inspections were made, and special cards left, advising merchants of observed security problems.

For 1986, one of the primary department goals is an increased officer presence in the business and residential areas. The number of footbeats conducted has risen steadily over the past several years, and will continue to do so. The department offers both home and business security inspections free of charge, and we encourage members of the community to take advantage of these programs. Officers are available to assist you at any time, and we're only a phone call away.

Help us to achieve our goal of making this a safer community for everyone, and take the opportunity to meet a member of YOUR Police Department. Call us at 624-6403.

The Mayor's Race

Charlotte Townsend

CHARLOTTE TOWNSEND, two-time Carmel mayor, is asking voters to send her back for a third two-year term April 8.

Townsend, who ran for mayor unopposed in 1984 and defeated Barney Laiolo in 1982, is a former library trustee and past president of the Carmel Sanitary District Board of Directors.

PARKING PROGRAM

Like the rest of this council, Townsend favors a "go slow" approach to determine the costs, benefits and impacts of a Sunset Center parking facility before proceeding with the project.

"To imagine that it's going to solve our parking problems is ludicrous," she said. "Parking has been an issue since the 1920s."

The mayor said she will decide her position on a parking garage only after all the data is completed.

Townsend pointed out that a parking facility — estimated to cost about $5 million — would be "the most expensive project that the city of Carmel-by-the-Sea has ever contemplated."

"On the one hand these people (meaning her challengers) talk aboust fiscal responsibility and then they say they want a facility without knowing who will pay for it and what benefits it will have for the local people. I want to look at the whole picture."

Townsend said now that the city has addressed the major issues of the general plan, city hall reorganization and remodeling, the beach repairs and public restrooms, it can now turn its attention to the parking.

SHUTTLE BUS

Townsend said a shuttle bus system for residents "sounds like a good idea" but that the city has to explore the costs, especially insurance, before making a commitment.

SECOND KITCHENS

"I have always favored legalization of second kitchens," Townsend said.

Townsend added that "you bet it's controversial" but she pointed out that the city council rejected the ordinance that challenger Eastwood refers to as "Gestapo."

LIBRARY

The mayor chose to be a compromiser in the latest vote, casting the tie-breaking vote to support a smaller annex on the northwest corner of Lincoln Street and Sixth Avenue.

Townsend has long been an advocate of an annex to provide more space for Harrison Memorial Library.

BEACH WALKWAY

The walkway plan still is to be voted on by the council once the final environmental impact report is completed.

Townsend pointed out that very few residents chose to comment on the beach walkway plan while it was being discussed by the task force. There also were just a handful of comments on the EIR.

None of the council candidates so critical of the plan — including Clint Eastwood — spoke against the walkway during the public hearings.

The mayor said said she has "great confidence" in the task force recommendations and will support the walkway. "I think it's absolutely marvelous."

CONSULTANT COSTS

The city has been criticized for hiring so many consultants, but Townsend pointed out that the California Environmental Quality Act requires a tremendous amount of data to be gathered by trained professionals.

The mayor said that the city "deserves the best" consultants for its projects.

Speaking to Eastwood, Townsend challenged: "If he had technical problems with one of his films wouldn't he think it worthwhile to go out and find the best help?"

CARMEL RIVER DAM

The mayor, who serves on the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District Board of Directors, maintains her cautious stance on the proposed Carmel River Dam.

She pointed out that Marin County rushed through an expensive $40 million dam and because of state requirements for steelhead habitat protection the county received less water than it had without a dam.

Like the parking facility, Townsend says she will withhold judgment until all of the costs versus benefits are available from the EIR.

ODELLO DEVELOPMENT

The lawsuit to block development of the Odello property was not against the family, but against the county for improper planning of development, Townsend said.

The city has never said it does not want any development on the Odello property. The suit was filed to ensure that the county follow legal planning procedures and adequately address the environmental impacts of a large subdivision on Highway 1.

Townsend said that traffic problems in that area already are a nightmare.

The city succeeded in its lawsuit and now the Odello property can be developed under proper planning guidelines, perhaps as part of the pending Carmel Valley Master Plan.

SPANISH BAY

Contrary to Eastwood's charges, the mayor said she has been meeting with Pebble Beach Co. over a possible compromise in the lawsuit.

The mayor is concerned that traffic tieups will prevent people from reaching the hospital on Highway 68. That is the focal point of the negotiations.

Townsend added that the city must be active in ensuring proper planning outside its borders because development impacts Carmel's traffic, water supply and general quality of life.

She said that the city "months ago" told the county that the Spanish Bay lawsuit would be dropped if supervisors would agree to review its circulation element of the general plan.

There would be no strings attached and if the county found no fault with its studies, the suit still would not be refiled, Townsend said.

That compromise was rejected by the county.

As for the city not joining the Holman Highway Task Force, the mayor said that Carmel is participating in a broader and more comprehensive traffic study being conducted by the county.

MISSION RANCH

Townsend has supported city purchase of Mission Ranch. She added that the city made the offer in closed session legally because the property is in the midst of a lawsuit.

She had fears that early disclosure of council intent would artifically inflate the asking price, which was exactly what happened with Piccadilly Park, bought by a former council.

CBA GRANTS

Townsend said she has "always advocated" a city grant to the Carmel Business Association but the "mayor is just one vote out of five."

FLANDERS MANSION

"I was very much in favor of putting a youth hostel there and I'd like to see that reopened."

LOCAL BUSINESS

The mayor is confident that the newly-created service-commercial buffer zone between the commercial and residential districts will encourage more resident-serving business since tourist shops will not be allowed in that area.

The Mayor's Race

Timothy Grady

TIM GRADY, a member of the Environmentalist Party, is seeking election to the Carmel City Council April 8.

BEACH WALKWAY

"I would cancel it immediately," Grady said of the plan to develop a walking path on Scenic Road.

Grady said he would use the funds earmarked for the beach walkway to help pay for Mission Ranch acquisition or buying the Odello site.

SPANISH BAY

Grady supports the city legal action that seeks to block development of the Spanish Bay resort.

Grady said he would use the "full force" of legal action to control development outside the city limits.

"It's the only way the common people can level our disgust at this rampant development."

ODELLO AND MISSION RANCH

Grady supports the legal action on the Odello property, but would prefer that the city buy the site.

Acquisition of the Odello Ranch coupled with purchase of Mission Ranch would provide two farms for residents who want to grow food organically, he said.

CARMEL RIVER DAM

"I'm absolutely opposed to it," Grady declared.

Grady believes that the dam will be used just to justify new development and will raise water rates.

Instead, he thinks residents should conserve water and cities should provide cisterns to collect rainwater for irrigation.

SENIOR HOUSING

"First of all, whoever sold that land to the city...that price cannot be justified," Grady said of the senior citizen housing project on Dolores Street.

In saying that we need to live together — children, adults and seniors — Grady asks that "all Carmel citizens look into their hearts and analyze what their possessions are. Senior citizens are a sacred entity."

Grady also supports legalization of second kitchens that can help provide more affordable housing in town.

CITY-BUSINESS RELATIONS

Grady wants to see the city and business "develop a sense of consciousness of not only the community but of the needs of the world."

A new attitude is needed, Grady says, to promote environmental ideals, such as organic food and a oneness with nature.

"The only health food store in town is stuck way in the back in a closet," he said.

"What we need is some forward thinking. The old policies are just outdated," he added. "I'm getting impatient with the status quo. I see it leading up to an economic holocaust."

LIBRARY EXPANSION

One of Grady's platforms is to fault the city for its major projects, which he says just justifies the salaries of the various consultants and planners. The same holds true for the library annex proposal, he said.

"This smacks of the same leechery that the beach project does. This is a costly matter. I think there's enough room in the library now," he said.

PARKING PROGRAM

An avowed opponent of automobiles and concrete, Grady calls the plan to build a Sunset Center parking facility "ridiculous."

"I don't want to see any parking garages built in this town," he said.

GAMBLE ESTATE

Grady called the council project to reduce development on the Gamble property "commendable...That's in the direction I'm leaning."

But Grady wants to see not just a reduction in development, but a trend toward no development so the city can once again have open space.

"I want to see deer walking through downtown Carmel," he said.

FLANDERS MANSION

"I think the idea about a youth hostel is commendable," he said.

Grady would also like to see the city grow organic food on the land."

OVERALL PHILOSOPHY

In concluding, Grady said he wants to see the city "loosen up."

In borrowing the late President John F. Kennedy's phrase, Grady said, "Ask not what you can do for yourself, but for what you can do for the planet."

"That issue was raised by the residents of the community. As their councilman, I responded," Maradei said. "The end result has brought Pebble Beach and the city to a mutually satisfactory solution."

LIBRARY EXPANSION

Maradei views the smaller annex proposal on the northwest corner of Lincoln Street and Sixth Avenue as a "workable compromise" to the 25-year-old controversy.

"As far as I am concerned the library issue has been settled. It has been approved by the council, planning commission and library board."

SPANISH BAY

Maradei and the entire council have supported the lawsuit over development at Spanish Bay because the county failed to provide an adequate environmental impact analysis of the traffic on Highway 68.

The lawsuit was rejected twice on technical procedural errors and is pending appeal to the state Supreme Court.

The city especially is concerned about the traffic entering Carmel from Pebble Beach as a result of the project.

However, the city has been negotiating with Pebble Beach Co.; another round of talks occurred last week between Mayor Charlotte Townsend, Monterey Mayor Clyde Roberson (Monterey is a partner in the lawsuit) and Pebble Beach Co.

"We are working toward a solution. We have definite concerns and we believe Pebble Beach is in a positive frame of mind and seems willing to work with us," Maradei said.

It is no secret that the council would probably drop the lawsuit if Pebble Beach came up with a plan to provide quicker and easier access to the hospital.

BEACH WALKWAY

Maradei is a member of the task force that developed the beach walkway plan as part of phase two of the rehabilitation project.

The walkway proposal has been considered in Carmel for 15 years and is an integral part of the general plan, Maradei said.

If the plan is scrapped, as his opponents have proposed, residents will not have a safe place to walk on Scenic Road, he said.

"The community should have the ability to walk with dignity on the shoreline without competing with automobiles, skateboards and bicycles," he said.

On the removal of parking, Maradei said it was a "controversial" issue when discussed by the task force, but few members of the public bothered to attend the meetings or comment during the review period for the environmental impact report.

CITY-BUSINESS RELATIONS

Maradei said that "some of the frustration experienced by business is because they don't have any say in the city council deliberations."

To help understand business better, Maradei said that if he is re-elected he will join the Carmel Business Association (CBA) "to provide that communicative link that is necessary to restore their feeling of belonging to our community.

"Business is an integral, important part of Carmel-by-the-Sea and I believe that they deserve the recognition for the contributions they make."

CITY GRANTS TO THE CBA

"The CBA is an organization of business persons who want to increase the tourist traffic to the community. I don't think the city should be in a position of supporting tourism."

HATTON CANYON FREEWAY

"My position is Hatton Canyon Freeway should be supported for the sole reason that it will reduce the amount of traffic that utilizes the residential streets of Carmel-by-the-Sea."

ODELLO DEVELOPMENT

Maradei stressed that the lawsuit is against improper planning by the county and is not one targeted at the Odello family.

Maradei said the city will not push it farther as long as the county is committed to planning for development there with controls established in the pending Carmel Valley Master Plan.

CARMEL RIVER DAM

"If the public wants the dam they'll have an opportunity to vote on it and it is that decision of the electorate that will decide the future."

SECOND KITCHENS

Maradei supports legalization of second kitchens with controls to ensure that general plan goals of providing low-cost housing are met.

Maradei said the council had to compromise, because "these people who have illegally installed second kitchens will be given dollar benefits for breaking the law. Many people in the community feel this is unfair and improper."

Maradei pointed out that the proposed ordinance that challengers are claiming is "Gestapo" was rejected by the council as being "too severe" and modifications are being planned.

PARKING

On the Sunset Center parking garage, Maradei wants to assemble concrete financial information and details of how the facility would be used and then submit the entire plan to the voters for approval.

"The voters will make a decision whether they want to build and pay for a parking facility," he said.

Maradei also wants to explore the feasibility of a shuttle bus system and possible satellite parking areas, but is not committed to any specific plan until costs and details are worked out.

Mission Ranch

Maradei said it was legal for the council to offer to buy Mission Ranch in a closed door session because the matter was in litigation.

Maradei said a past council had to pay too much for Piccadilly Park because details were made public before a decision was reached.

He added that public support of a purchase indicates that the council intent of buying the land has overwhelming support.

ATTRACTING LOCAL BUSINESS

Maradei said the rezoning to create a district for resident-serving business will eventually work.

The empty shops will make landlords realize that they cannot charge high rents in that district so the costs will fall, making it possible for local-serving business to return to Carmel.

'Raise the Roof' Golf tournament

Congregation Beth Israel of Monterey is sponsoring the first annual "Raise the Roof" golf tournament and awards banquet, Sunday, April 13 at Rancho Canada Golf Club.

The congregation is in the process of reaching its 30-year goal of building a new home and sanctuary on Carmel Valley Road. All net proceeds will go to the new building fund.

The tax-deductible entry fee is $75 per player and includes greens fees, half-powered golf cart, continental breakfast, box lunch (delivered on the course), steak dinner, tourney awards and prizes. Individual prizes will be awarded in several categories.

A raffle drawing will also be held. The top prizes will include rounds of golf at several prestigious courses on the peninsula, a set of golf clubs, plus many other prizes.

Entry deadline is April 4. For information and registration forms, call 646-0335, or write to Congregation Beth Israel Golf Tourney, 708 Cass St., Monterey 93940. The entry fee is tax-deductible.

M&Ms return for Easter program

How do children understand the Easter story? The peninsula's resident children's musical drama group, the M&Ms, will attempt to answer this question in their new production, "Sunshine and Rainbows," on Sunday, March 30 (Easter Day) at Seaside Assembly of God.

The cast of 25 has been working hard for three months to make this their most ambitious project ever. Director Paulette Pfitzer is confident the event will be another success, with plenty of colorful stage effects as well as some fine singing.

There will be two performances, at 5 and 6 p.m., at the church at 1184 Hilby Ave. Admission is free.

The Mayor's Race

Clint Eastwood

CLINT EASTWOOD, the world-famous actor and director, is making his first try for elected office.

Eastwood, who has lived in Carmel for 14 years, is one of three challengers to incumbent Mayor Charlotte Townsend on Election Day, April 8.

CITY-BUSINESS RELATIONS

Eastwood wants to repair city-business relations by creating an open, friendly atmosphere by the council and all of city hall.

"I want to build an atmosphere or a feeling that the city is going to help people; concentrating on things that we can do to help rather than what we can't do."

Eastwood promises "no more rudeness, just old-fashioned courtesy" for applicants.

Eastwood opposes the current council philosophy that it is quasi-judicial and therefore cannot become personally involved.

"If you can't help people, don't take this job. Don't pretend you're going to be a public servant and then hide behind that word quasi-judicial. The public is your boss."

CITY GRANTS TO THE CBA

Eastwood said "the Carmel Business Association probably does an okay job by itself and can raise money on its own," but expressed a willingness to listen to any proposal the CBA makes.

"I'd rather give it to the CBA than the 99 consultants we're going to hire next week," he said in a jab at the council for hiring outside assistance — one of Eastwood's pet peeves.

CITY CONSULTANTS

Eastwood has made a campaign issue of the cost to the city of hiring outside consultants. He uses as an example the $50,000 for the now-underway master environmental assessment.

Carmel has numerous residents who would help the city with special consultation needs, Eastwood said.

"People in our community are perfectly willing to volunteer," he said.

CITY FINANCES

"The city has a $6 million budget and we have $2.4 million in reserve. That's why we're blowing money. We're sitting there with too much money than we know what to do with," Eastwood said.

"What I advocate is better respect of the money. The (Carmel) Youth Center is going broke and we're spending too much money on consultants."

CLOSING PEBBLE PEACH GATE

Eastwood's campaign also has focused on the plan to close the North San Antonio Street gate to Pebble Beach. It is a plan Eastwood calls "ridiculous."

Eastwood said it would have been less expensive and friendlier if the city had just asked Pebble Beach Co. to modify its gate operations. The city paid a consultant $5,000 to report that Carmel has the legal right to close the gate.

Closing the gate is in direct contradiction to city attempts to help resident-oriented business, Eastwood said.

"Many resident-oriented businesses rely on their neighbors from Pebble Beach to come and shop here," he said.

SECOND KITCHENS

Eastwood describes a proposed ordinance to control second kitchens as "Gestapo."

He opposes the plan to control rents and check on the units with a five-day notice. He also does not think landlords of second kitchen units should have to enter into a contract that dictates who can be the tenant and for how long.

"I would leave second kitchens alone. I think they have been harassed enough," Eastwood said.

PARKING

Eastwood would build the parking facility at Sunset Center "right away," financing the costs by selling bonds.

Eastwood also proposes a permit program that would allow residents to park in the timed zones for as long as they want. "I don't think residents are the parking problem," he said.

ODELLO EAST DEVELOPMENT

"I'd drop litigation against the Odello family right away and stop harassing them. I cannot believe we cannot come to some kind of agreement."

Eastwood said the city is "penalizing" the Odellos for keeping their property out of development for so many years.

Eastwood promised to meet with the Odellos and develop a compromise "so that we can all be happy."

On the fact that the city won the lawsuit, Eastwood replied, "Winning doesn't make it right any more than losing the Pebble Beach lawsuit makes it wrong."

SPANISH BAY LAWSUIT

Eastwood said he would personally meet with Tom Oliver, Pebble Beach Co. president, and oilman Marvin Davis, owner of the company, to work out an agreeable compromise to settle out of court.

"I cannot believe that we cannot sit down and talk. I don't think they're unreasonable people," he said.

Eastwood also wants the city to join in the Holman Highway Task Force that is seeking improvements to the road that connects Highway 1 with Pebble Beach. Highway 68 also is the only connection for Carmel to Community Hospital. The City of Carmel has declined to be a member of the task force.

BEACH WALKWAY

"My only problem with the walkway has been that it's another one of those issues that has been talked about and still nobody knows about it," Eastwood said.

Eastwood said he would like to convene a town forum where residents can look at the plan and let the council know whether they support the walkway.

"I'm a public servant. If the public wants it I would be remiss in not supporting it," Eastwood said.

SENIOR HOUSING PROJECT

Eastwood likes the Dolores Street plan but still is concerned that the housing authority may be forced to open applications to non-city residents.

"I think we should have kept it in our city structure," Eastwood said.

LIBRARY EXPANSION

Eastwood said he will sit down with the library board to work out the best expansion plan for Harrison Memorial Library.

"I've always loved that building. It's got great character," he said.

Personally, Eastwood favors buying the buildings next door to keep services under one roof, but added: "I think if the people want it we should get to work on it."

Negotiations with Pine Inn for a joint city-Pine Inn parking facility as part of the annex should also be reopened, he said.

"I think it's worth exploring."

ENCOURAGING LOCAL BUSINESS

Eastwood said that the two key tools to encourage more locally oriented business is for the city to provide more parking and to make it easier for those service shops to get through the application process.

MISSION RANCH

Eastwood supports city purchase of Mission Ranch, but "only after full public hearings."

GAMBLE ESTATE

Eastwood admits that the Gamble Estate project worked and actually made money for the city.

However, Eastwood asks whether it is "ethical" for a city to adopt strict controls on the property and announce its intentions to buy the site, thus driving away competition.

FLANDERS MANSION

Eastwood advocates selling the mansion. "There comes a time when Carmel has to stop and realize that we cannot buy the world."

CARMEL RIVER DAM

Eastwood supports the city joining the assessment district to study the feasibility of a new dam.

"If they do decide to build it we have to be in line for an allocation. We can't be at the end of the line," he said.

Couples' relationships explored

The Family Service Agency of the Monterey Peninsula sponsors an ongoing couples group designed to improve communication, deepen bonds of intimacy and enrich relationships.

Led by licensed marriage and family therapist Jeanne M. Brewer, the group meets weekly at the Family Service Agency, 1010 Cass St., Suite D-12, Monterey. A sliding scale fee will be charged. For additional information, call 373-4421.

Special education is special

By TULARCITOS SPECIAL EDUCATION STAFF

Special education at Tularcitos consists of a Special Day Class, a Resource Specialist Program, and a Speech and Language Program.

In the Resource Specialist Program and the Speech and Language Program children from the kindergarten through fifth-grade classrooms attend special education instruction for short periods each day. Length of instruction may vary from 30 minutes to two hours depending on the students' needs.

The Special Day Class students receive instruction outside of the regular class for at least half of their school day. The special education staff consists of a teacher and an aide for both the Resource Specialist Program and the Special Day Class. The Speech and Language program is staffed by one speech and language therapist.

A child who is having difficulties in the classroom may be referred to the Child Study Team by a parent, a classroom teacher, the principal, or in some cases by the child himself.

The team consists of the classroom teacher, the principal, the special education teachers and the district psychologist. The team may offer suggestions for the classroom teacher to try in the classroom, arrange a parent conference, refer for counseling, or, if warranted, decide to assess the student to determine if there is a need for special education. After assessment, the team meets with the parents and decides where the child's needs will besy be met. If special education placement is chosen, an Individualized Education Plan is written. This plan lists the goals and objectives to be achieved during the coming year.

Special education at Tularcitos is a remedial program to prepare the child to function in the regular classroom. It is not viewed as a permanent placement. A student is placed in a special education program as a result of the team decision. The Individualized Education Plan is rewritten at least once every year at which time the team may decide that the child no longer requires special education instruction.

In the Special Day Class, students receive instruction in reading, math, written language, spelling and study skills. In addition, they also learn to understand their strengths in order to counteract their weaknesses. They learn that they are valuable people regardless of their learning handicaps.

The Resource Specialist Program serves 27 students in grades K-5. Students may come for instruction in one subject area or several. Group sizes range from one to five. An educational setting is provided that is tailored to the individual needs of each child.

The Speech and Language Program services 36 students who have problems with articulation, voice, fluency or language. These students learn to correct or compensate for their disorders in individual or small group therapy sessions.

All educators teach children to discover how they learn best. Special education focuses attention more closely on the special learning needs of each student. This is accomplished by determining each student's strongest learning mode and then using this strength in teaching.

The special education teachers at Tularcitos enjoy working as a team with other staff members, parents and students to provide the best educational opportunities for each individual. The greatest reward is to watch these students succeed and become more productive members of the school environment.

Last of primary years

By ROSEMARY MONTGOMERY
River School Principal

Third grade is the last of the primary years. It's that time when you are in between, not very little and not very big. School changes in subtle ways and a transition occurs. More independence is expected and more responsibility is given. It's the year when you have recess on the lower playground with the big kids.

Third-graders begin to become more conscious of their peers. They develop strong friendships and "my best friend" becomes an important concern, especially for the girls. Boys become seriously involved in team sports and begin to learn the intricacies of teamwork, a difficult skill to master for a third-grader.

Third-grade teachers offer a complex array of techniques and activities which challenge and stimulate third-grade minds. Alys Bliesner, Margaret Merchant and Steve Taylor give River School extraordinary third-grade classrooms.

Alys Bliesner is new to third grade this year, though not new to River School. She taught special education here for many years and brings all of that unique experience to the regular classroom. She is very aware of individual differences and needs and provides instruction based on those needs.

Alys' students benefit from her strong interest in science and her strong ties to our community. She is piloting a science program this year which covers earth science, life science and physical science. She relates those areas to the third-grade social studies curriculum, the study of communities. Students see the relationships and have the opportunity to use their reading, writing and thinking skills as they explore the richness of their environment. Alys awakens their curiosity and encourages discussion and sharing of ideas. She appreciates the need for children to express their views.

On almost any day, you're likely to hear wonderful music coming from Room 13. It might be a lovely aria from Carmen or the rich voice of Pavarotti. Third-grade students learn to enjoy opera because Margaret Merchant brings the music alive. Years later, students remember the experience with pleasure.

Enthusiasm is part of all that Margaret does. Her lessons are presented with an energy that is contagious. Students are encouraged to observe, to question, to think. A recent unit on botany was a perfect example of the opportunity for students to use those skills. The classroom was filled with a variety of plants and teams of children were busy observing, gathering data and making conclusions. Mrs. Merchant was there to guide, to encourage and to challenge. She is a gifted lady.

Active is the word to describe Steve Taylor. Not only does he teach third grade at River School, he directs the Carmel Recreation Department programs after school. In addition to directing the various programs, Steve finds time to spend with the children who participate. He sincerely enjoys working with children and they know it. Students think Mr. T is pretty special.

FRANKLIN FEDERAL TAX-FREE INCOME FUND

Current Annualized Yield*	Equivalent Taxable Yield

Today, every penny counts. Now make sure they add up. This Fund invests exclusively in municipal bonds, which makes the income 100% free of Federal income taxes.

For example, if you're in the maximum tax bracket, you pay the Federal government $500 of every $1,000 earned from a fully taxable investment. When you invest in this Fund, you can keep the whole $1,000.† So, a yield of 8.28% equivalent to a taxable yield of 16.56% for investors in the maximum Federal tax bracket. The Fund pays monthly dividends.

*Current yield based upon an annualization of the monthly dividends paid by the Fund since Mar.-6, 1986 and the offering price on xxxxxxx xx, xxxx. The Fund uses a commonly accepted accounting principle known as equalization. The Fund's yield varies with changes in dividends paid and the offering price. The value of your investment at redemption may be more or less than your coast.

†A portion may be subject to state and local taxes.

She was active in theater productions at the Forest Theater and was a cohort of John Steinbeck and a co-worker with Lincoln Steffens. She was surrounded by many famous writers and artists who came to visit Carmel's artist colony.

She attended Sunset School in Monterey, Monterey High School and Salinas Junior College (now called Hartnell).

She was stricken by Alzheimer's Disease several years ago but even when she became quite ill, she was able to continue her daily walks with her dogs in the town she loved so well and where she was so well known.

Survivors include two sons, Daniel of Carmel and David of Hawaii; a daughter, Catherine of Carmel; a brother, Bain Reamer of Auburn; and one grandson, Nathaniel Elber. Another son, Jonathan, died in 1978.

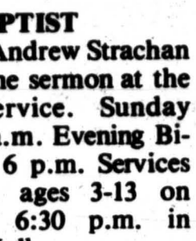
The Golden Years



By Myles Williams

"To be seventy years young is sometimes far more cheerful and hopeful than to be forty years old."
— Oliver Wendell Holmes

Frailty is not an inevitable consequence of old age. That's the conclusion of Dr. Andrea Sankar of the University of Michigan after studying the data on elderly villagers in the Russian Caucasus region who continue to work in good health into their 90s and even past age 100. Dr. Sankar says that sensational stories about such villagers living to an average age of 130 were exaggerated, but that recent scientific studies have found that people of the Caucasus "not only live unusually long lives, but are in enviable health." Among the Russians over age 90 in that region, there is no cancer, very little diabetes and only slight hearing loss.

THE BASEBALL GAME WAS A HUMDINGER

The beautiful weather last Sunday afternoon induced a large number of townspeople to proceed to Wilson Field to witness The Firemen and The Southenders tangle up in a baseball game.

It was a good game (played with an indoor baseball), and the Southenders took the short end of an 8 to 2 score.

The features of the game, on behalf of The Firemen, was the noise made by Jack Gillis, and for The Southenders, Mr. Joseph G. Hooper pulled the prize play by stepping on Roy Fratis' tummy.

Arthur E. Donnelly decided the base plays and Fred Leidig called the balls and strikes. Both did a fair day's work.

BIDS ASKED FOR $90,000 UNIT AT CARMELO SCHOOL

The Carmel Unified School District Board of Trustees called for bids today for an additional classroom building at the Carmelo Elementary School in Carmel Valley.

The new building, estimated cost $90,000, will contain four classrooms, to be adjoined to the existing unit by a covered corridor and will also have corridors along the south exposure. Materials will be redwood and plaster.

It is planned that the building will be ready for occupancy when school starts in the fall.

TRAFFIC FINES INCREASED

While certain traffic fines in Carmel are going up, City Administrator Hugh Bayless warns that the city's revenues from those fines are in danger of decreasing drastically.

Although, effective March 1, 1976, fines for violations such as jaywalking, double parking or erasing a chalk mark are higher, the real ticket-getter — overtime parking — remains at three dollars.

At the same time, a bill for a major court reorganization (SB 1500), which has the tentative support of the governor, would — if passed — mean a 50 percent decrease in monies returned to the cities via the Traffic Safety Bonds.

Carmel annually receives about $100,000 from fines stemming from Carmel traffic ordinances, the California Vehicle Code (moving violations) and criminal violations. Under the proposed court reorganization bill, Carmel would stand to lose about $50,000 of that money.

CARMEL VOICE

BY SAM SALERNO

Election?...what election?

Standing room only at Candidates Night at All Saints Episcopal Church with many boos and ahs when candidates spoke. The biggest plus coming out this election is the interest and enthusiasm generated by the local populace. I say, it's about time!

HURRAH FOR PARENTS

They seldom get the credit deserved in raising children. My hat is off to Ernie Williams, owner of the Red Lion in Carmel for his son Matt. When adults in this day and age criticize youngsters, they should meet someone like Matt. He's young, handsome and a gentleman in every way...and a great golfer. Congratulations, Ernie, you do good work. Matt, incidentally, is the cart boy at Spyglass Hill.

HERE AND THERE

Who will occupy the space vacated by Saks in the Del Monte Center? Big question. Carmel Plaza couldn't care less because Saks will be moving there. Great addition to the Plaza.

Artist extraodinaire Bill Dodge of Carmel heads for New York City for his annual poster signing at Art Expo/New York 1986. It's a biggie. It opens at the new Jacob Javits Convention Center. A dinner in Bill's honor will be held at Tavern on the Green by owner Warner LeRoy. Some of the guests will include Beverly Sills, Liv Ullman, Maureen O'Sullivan, Dorothy Loudon and Ruth Warrick. Carmel Highlands artist Donna Moses and husband Darryl will accompany Dodge and Donna will introduce her works there. Bon voyage!

Want to take a Scottish Fling? How about playing Turnberry, Carnoustie, or the Old Course at St. Andrews? Pete Vitarisi, pro at Pacific Grove, says it'll take place Aug. 4-13. He's helping promote it through Carmel-Monterey Travel. Give him a call if Scotland is on your itinerary.

Quarterback Jim McMahon of the Chicago Bears, huddling with Steve King, the bon vivant of Carmel, recently. He was in town for a couple rounds of golf. I'm certain that Steve took him to all the "in" spots.

Has Don Bowen put a deal together for Walter Becker and the old Brasserie? Also called Bourbon Street. Methinks it might be the Anton & Michel group. If so, it couldn't happen to a better group of operators. They also run Fish House on the Park restaurant.

While on the subject of real estate, we want to wish Ernie Benetti good luck as he takes over the business at Donna Dougherty Real Estate. Ernie will be the head honcho and Donna will remain as one of the sales experts.

SECOND KITCHENS

Laub favors second kitchens as a method to help provide more affordable housing in town for the elderly and young people.

LIBRARY EXPANSION

"My preference, frankly, is to put it all in one spot, but I would do it exactly as the people want," Laub said.

If the public wants an annex, however, Laub believes the city should build a large facility.

"Let's not build something that's instantly obsolete," he said.

CITY FINANCES

Laub promises to cut "red tape" at city hall, thus trimming payroll and budget.

For example, Laub wants a book of pre-approved fence and sign designs. When an applicant wants a sign, he could pick one out of the book and it would be automatically approved.

If the applicant wants a sign that is not in the pre-approved book, then he would apply to the planning commission.

MISSION RANCH

"The city should buy it and make it into a recreation center just like Sunset Center is the cultural center," Laub said.

Laub also wants to see an indoor swimming pool constructed with the financial assistance of the Barracudas Swim Club.

CBA FINANCIAL SUPPORT

Laub supports providing some city subventions to the Carmel Business Association "for the things it does for the city."

But he believes the CBA may be better off if it remains independent from any city pursestrings.

GAMBLE ESTATE

If Laub had been in office during the Gamble estate deal, the city would have bought the property and then swapped with a motel owner.

The motel then could have been converted to senior citizen housing, Laub said.

FLANDERS MANSION

"Make it into a hostel," Laub said. "The hostel people have money to fix up the mansion and use it for something good."

HATTON CANYON FREEWAY

"I say let's widen the road (existing Highway 1) right now, tomorrow morning, 8 o'clock. The traffic out there is outrageous."

MOTEL TAX

Laub favors keeping the motel tax at 10 percent.

"I don't feel that 10 percent is a problem. Even more importantly, let's treat the visitor as well as possible and let's let the visitor treat us as well as possible."

Maggi Weston: a gallery visionary

By ANNE PAPINEAU

MAGGI WESTON took a gamble when she opened a gallery in Carmel devoted exclusively to fine art photography. A decade later the Weston Gallery is the world's largest single source for vintage prints by such masters as Edward Weston, Paul Strand and Ansel Adams. The gallery is currently featuring "Edward Weston: A Centennial Celebration," a retrospective that brings together images from the 1920s through the mid-1940s. All were printed by Edward Weston. (Holly McFarland photograph.)

WHEN, A DECADE ago, Maggi Weston contemplated opening a gallery devoted to fine art photography, she sought the advice of a trusted friend.

"I don't know, Maggi," Ansel Adams responded. "There's never been a gallery in Carmel like that and photographs don't sell that way."

Despite that early appraisal by the dean of American photographers, the Weston Gallery opened on Sixth Avenue, entrenched behind gallery lines long dominated by paintings, statues and limited edition serigraphs.

"I suppose I was quite green business-wise. When I opened the gallery Ansel Adams' prints sold for $500," Weston recalled. "Now his "Moonrise" sells for $11,000. Between 1979 and '81 prices started to really jump by great leaps and bounds."

Today the gallery that Maggi built harbors an international reputation as a wellspring for quality images by the master photographers. When she wants to, as she did for Edward Weston's "Shell" in 1979, Maggi Weston will outbid no less than New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art to obtain a choice photograph for her gallery. Such is the gallery's cachet that collectors from the eastern United States and Europe make it a point to come to Carmel-by-the-Sea in their quest for the perfect print.

A visit to Maggi Weston's offices — separate from the gray-hued gallery — reflect the owner's enthusiasm for fine photography and ability to choose and acquire stellar prints by masters of that art.

'I think it's wonderful for those who bought photographs years and years ago because they bought out of love for the image. The investment was made out of love, not greed. For me it's terribly important to find the right person for the print.'

Her office is furnished simply to counterpoint the subtly changing constellation of images that surround her desk.

"I do a lot of business on the telephone," Weston quipped, within sight of vintage prints by Man Ray, Paul Strand, Cecil Beaton, Julia Margaret Cameron, Ansel Adams and others.

Presently the Weston Gallery is paying tribute to the late Edward Weston. The Carmel Highlands photographer was formerly Maggi Weston's father-in-law, although he died before she married his youngest son, Cole.

"Edward Weston is regarded as one of the masters of modern photography. Internationally he is recognized as that, and as such will go down in history," she observed. Speaking of the senior Weston and Adams, she added, "It's amazing Carmel has two of the major, major historic figures in photography who will not fade away, who will have books published about their works in the years to come."

The Weston Gallery, as probably the major source of Edward Weston photographs in the world, has mounted a retrospective that embraces the artist's works from the early 1920s through the mid-1940s. Included in "Edward Weston: A Centennial Celebration," are vintage printings of "Pepper No. 30, 1930," "Nude in the Doorway," and platinum prints of Tina Modotti.

"There are 10 pieces in the Weston show that are virtually impossible to come by," she admitted. "To have a vintage show is a real coup. If we were doing this show in New York, we would have all kinds of buyers and press. It's getting harder and harder to locate works like these, even to find them at auction."

It is almost a natural progression that the Monterey Peninsula should house the world's chief source for the works of Edward Weston and Ansel Adams. Since the early years of this century the Monterey Peninsula has attracted innovative photographers and people who appreciated their work.

"We've the largest collection of their work in the country, and that really means the world," Weston said in her soft British accent. "The business is just now international. It's been a gradual growth and change."

The Weston Gallery is also the exclusive agent for the Ansel Adams Publishing Rights Trust, making it sole source for the Ansel Adams museum set, a collection that is sold to major museums around the world.

For many years photographers of even Edward Weston's stature found a modest market for their work. Unable to sell their prints, photographers exchanged them among themselves. Upon Weston's death in 1958 he sold prints for $50 — at most.

Maggi Weston and her Carmel gallery were in on the ground floor of the photography boom that resounded in the late '70s. Until that time she, like the pioneer photographers, struggled to make a go of her concern.

"When I opened obviously I was thinking of earning a living," Weston observed. "I had my son Matthew to raise. It was hard work. I was here seven days a week. I couldn't afford a babysitter so I brought Matthew home from school. He played with crayons downstairs. He travelled with me to auctions."

To this day Weston does the majority of the buying for the gallery herself. Her associate is Russell Anderson, an appraiser whose specialty is 19th century photographs.

"I think for the most part photography was terribly underpriced," she noted. "I think as the auctions started to pick up that also helped the marketplace. I think paintings were going terribly, terribly high and collectors were looking for another artform to invest in. I believe photography was ripe for that."

One of Weston's personal treasures that hangs in her Carmel Valley home is a portrait of a woman by the 19th century photographer, Julia Margaret Cameron.

"I saw my first 19th century prints in New York. That really blew my mind," she admitted.

To obtain quality Weston travels to New York two or three times a year and to London and Europe an equal amount.

"We've bid as high as $20,000 for an Edward Weston print and sold it," she said. "We're the major source for Westons the world over. We've sold to the Victoria and Albert Museum in London, to museums in New York and in various parts of this country. People here ask why we don't relocate to New York. This is such a wonderful place, people do come to us."

Prints by the master photographers now sell for $2,500 to $70,000, Weston said.

"We like to sell to collectors who will eventually donate them to museums. There's a great responsibility to selling great pieces.

"I found I really enjoyed selling photographs," she said. "One learns by osmosis."

"We're very careful in our selection of young people. Young artists will try to see us and if we feel something is innovative and new, if we feel they have potential, we will tell them how to enhance what they're doing."

Artists like Ansel Adams made the black and white medium their trademark, but, as evident in the selection in the Weston Gallery, "Color is certainly coming into its own. I think there will always be the two processes. It matters how people see."

Thus the Weston Gallery teams artists who work in both color and black and white. It also pairs the works of latter-day masters like Steichen and Stieglitz with images by such contemporary artists as Michael Kenna, Olivia Parker, Barbara Kasten and Sandy Haber.

Over the years some of what Weston terms "quintessential pieces" have changed hands at her gallery — classics by Adams, Paul Strand, Roger Fenton and Carlton E. Watkins. And Weston maintains she finds pleasure in her work.

"I think it's wonderful for those who bought photographs years and years ago because they bought out of love for the image. The investment was made out of love, not greed. For me it's terribly important to find the right person for the print."

High school students discover the nation's capitol

By AMY PLOMTEAUX
Carmel High School sophomore

ON FEB. 23, 1986, 34 students and teachers from Carmel, Monterey and Alisal high schools left for Washington, D.C. on a trip none of us is likely to ever forget.

My friends and I had been talking about our trip for weeks. The excitement was diminished only slightly when we were told that we were to meet at the San Jose airport at 6 a.m.

As I opened my eyes at 5 that morning it hit me: "It's here! We're leaving!" My parents and I met my friend Danielle and her parents at the airport. We joined the Close-Up group at the United Airlines ticket counter. Then, with a tearful goodbye from our mothers, we were off!

Danielle will have permanent scars from me clawing her arm as the plane took off. Once we were in the air we put on our Walkmans and tried to do some homework. Three and one-half hours later we found ourselves in Chicago where it was a mere 18 degrees. Talk about cold! Then we were off to Dulles International Airport in Washington, D.C. We were greeted by a Close-Up staff member and taken to the Quality Inn at Pentagon City.

Danielle and I dropped our luggage into the hotel lobby and looked around. There seemed to be lines of kids going upstairs, so we headed that way too. Upstairs we found an interesting array of kids in registration lines. We elbowed our way into the girls' line and waited to receive room assignments and schedules.

We were assigned to Room 421, which we somehow managed to find. As we stood outside the room wondering who our roommates would be, suspense gripped us both. "Just open it!" said Danielle after my third attempt at opening the door.

Inside we found two girls from Homestead High School in Homestead, Fla. Their names were Patty and Maylin, and we all got along extremely well. Our schedules told us that dinner would be at 6:45. I don't care to relive that dinner or any other meals we ate at the hotel, but let's just say we both lost weight.

After "dinner" we met our program instructors ("PIs"). Ours was named Eddy and we liked him at first sight. We could tell he was very qualified and responsible — not to mention nice. By this time we were so wiped out that we had to carry each other up to the room. Of course, we giggled until 12:30 that night with our roommates, as Mr. Walch, our advisor from Carmel High, had predicted. Well, you were right, Mr. Walch!

ON MONDAY and Tuesday we attended several seminars, workshops and tours. After adjusting to eastern time, we found ourselves on the go all day long! We were up at 6:30 every morning and we usually went to sleep at about 12. On Monday morning we attended a seminar titled "An Insider's View of Washington," led by an extremely charismatic speaker who kept us on the edges of our seats.

We then went on a daytime bus tour which focused on "Washington, A City of Contrasts." Contrary to previous beliefs, we soon discovered that Washington is not all marble and smiles. There is also a very sad side of Washington. There are hundreds of homeless people and some areas of town are just plain depressing. But, on the other hand, there are some gorgeous parts filled with beautiful, luxurious looking homes.

We then proceeded to lunch at the Office of Personnel Management and then on to a seminar on "The Presidency." We then headed back to the hotel for dinner and workshops.

After workshops, we attended my favorite seminar of the week. This was a debate on domestic issues. The debaters were from different political organizations, which made it really exciting.

Then we met with our respective teachers for brief meetings about what had happened that week. By 11 p.m. we were definitely ready for bed!

Tuesday morning we attended topicals about different domestic issues. Danielle and I attended one called "You Have the Right to Remain Silent: The Rights of the Accused." It was interesting and we picked up some good information.

Excitement mounted as our bus headed for the National Conservative Political Action Committee. I knew this was going to be exciting because our group was 95 percent liberal-minded. It was great! We questioned and challenged our speaker until she looked as if she was going to have a nervous breakdown. What a show!

After lunch at the National Gallery of Art everyone headed to Capitol Hill for a guided tour with our program instructors. This was to prepare us for the next day to be spent by ourselves on Capitol Hill.

After acquiring several blisters from walking in new shoes, we went to the Capitol Hill reflecting pool for our group photo. While I was trying to organize the Carmel students for a picture, a snowball fight broke out.

Wet from snow, we went on to a seminar on "The Judiciary" at the Department of Labor. Dinner was at the Crystal Dinery in a nearby underground shopping mall. We then returned to the hotel for workshops and some sleep.

day on Capitol Hill, Danielle and I sat at breakfast, chased our eggs around our plates, and listened to the boys complain about having to wear ties all day. The buses took us to the east side of the capitol where we were "set free" for the day.

At 9:30 the students from Monterey, Carmel and Alisal met with Congressman Leon Panetta at his office in the Cannon House Building. We enjoyed the talk with him and our students asked very good questions.

A small group of students, which included Danielle and I, decided to visit the Supreme Court to see them in session. Next, it was time for a Close-Up luncheon at the Capitol Hill Club.

Following lunch we had several assignments to complete. The first step was to visit our senators' and representatives' offices. There we obtained gallery passes to visit the Senate and House of Representatives. We then collected bills from the House and Senate Document Room.

Other stops included the Library of Congress and the Botanical Gardens. We also visited the Dirksen and Rayburn office buildings. The buses met us at 5:15 and we went to the shops at National Place for dinner and some shopping. It was back to the hotel for workshops and a seminar on "The Media." My feet were definitely glad to get a rest that night. We had spent more than eight hours walking around Capitol Hill!

Thursday morning came much too early and Danielle and I found ourselves at the Johns Hopkins School for Advanced International Studies for a seminar on "International Relations," focusing on the Philippines. We were then taken to the National Cathedral for a tour. It was a really impressive church with beautiful mosaics and works of art. We had lunch at the Old Post Office which was a shopping mall with stores and restaurants.

Following lunch we had a seminar entitled "Defense" at the Department of Commerce — interesting, but a little hard to follow. We then went back to the hotel for workshops.

TIME FOR a break! Our Thursday itinerary included time in the evening for seeing a play at a dinner theater. We spent a lot of time getting ready because this was a special occasion. We saw Guys and Dolls, and it was great! I'm sure everyone would agree with me if I say that this was definitely the best food we ate all week! At 11 p.m. we returned (tired and happy) to the hotel.

We made it! The magic word — FRIDAY (translation: free time for the day). A group of Monterey and Carmel students, me included, took off for the subway station. If I hadn't known we were in Washington, D.C. I would have sworn we were in Disneyland. That subway looked unreal.

We somehow managed to get to the right place, from where we took a bus to Georgetown. We made a beeline for the Georgetown University bookstore where we cleaned out their supply of sweatshirts. The campus was really beautiful, and I used up a half a roll of film taking pictures of it. I had appointed myself official photographer of our group and proceeded to drive everyone crazy with my insistence that they pose in front of every monument and building.

We ate lunch at Roy Rogers, Washington, D.C.'s version of McDonald's. We then headed for a local "punk" shop known as Commander Salamander's. Wow — we're talking weird! Four of us got our hair dyed hot pink and blue (it washed out). We also bought T-shirts and souvenirs there. I brought pins back for some of my friends. After another insane bus ride, we were back at the subway station.

Next stop: the Smithsonian Institute. By popular demand, the Air and Space Museum won our attention. I had already been there once, but I found plenty of things to see that I had missed the first time. By then it was getting late so we decided to get back to the hotel to rest and shower for the banquet and dance that night. Thankfully, the pink dye came out of my hair and I was able to pull myself together.

Everyone looked really nice and there was an air of excitement in the hotel. The banquet went well and, believe it or not, the food was actually edible! Dinner was followed by a student talent show and closing speeches by the program intructors. We said goodbye to Eddy, our program instructor, and gave him a birthday card. Danielle and I bought group pictures and then went back up to the room to change again for the dance.

THE DANCE was a lot of fun, but I cannot print all the details because several people will probably shoot me if I did. Our curfew was one hour later that night, and by that time I was definitely ready for sleep. But we had to stay up and pack our suitcases — a real chore! We got to bed at about 2:30 that morning, thinking about all the good times we had that week.

Ours was the first group to leave on Saturday at a grueling 5:45 a.m. We were up at 5 to say goodbye to all our out-of-town friends and do last-minute packing. As we boarded the bus that morning, I couldn't help but laugh; 90 percent of us had Georgetown sweatshirts on! We looked like the biggest bunch of tourists! I was not quite conscious when we reached the airport but somehow I managed to get my luggage to the right place.

As soon as we were on the plane I found myself suddenly awake due to my dislike of flying. About six hours later we touched down in San Jose where Danielle's parents greeted us. We said goodbye to our new friends from Monterey and Alisal. As soon as I got home, I slept for 16 hours straight! What a week!

The trip was one of the greatest experiences of my life. Not only did we learn so much about our government, but we made many new friends. It was great! I would like to thank our advisors, Mr. Jay Bautista from Monterey High School and Mr. Robert Walch from Carmel High School. I would also like to thank my parents for sending me on this trip and my roommate Danielle, for being such a good friend. (We went through a lot that week!) Without these people I couldn't have gone on this trip. Washington, D.C. is a great city and I am very fortunate to have seen it...Close Up!

MUSIC CORNER
BY JO ANN LA TORRA

'Difficult' repertoire challenges county symphony

CLARK SUTTLE led the Monterey County Symphony through a long and difficult concert in the series of March 23, 24, 25.

Handel's Royal Fireworks Music opened the program. Although not an "authentic" performance, in the sense of using period instruments, it demonstrated a respectable awareness of Baroque style. Suttle kept the sound focused, in spite of all the vibrato, and the double-dotting in the Overture gave a desirable sharpness to the rhythm. The brass is very important in this movement, and they did well, although the horn ensemble was bottom heavy in comparison to the trumpet ensemble.

The dance movements that follow, in the nature of a Baroque suite, were generally well thought out in terms of tempo and articulation. One did have the feeling, however, that all the musicians would have benefitted from a first-hand knowledge of what it feels like to do the dances. That provides a sense of phrasing that teachers and books just cannot give.

Suttle, a double bass player, chose not to use them in the Handel. Personally, I would have preferred more bass sound, but that lack did not substantially affect my overall enjoyment.

THE SECOND HALF of the program was devoted to Howard Hanson's massive Second Symphony, "Romantic." Hanson, for many years director of the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, New York, is very solidly in the post-romantic tradition. The overall form owes something to the classical symphony but, in the nature of the romantic symphony, it is expanded in all directions. Hanson's harmonic language is not the highly chromatic variety but tends to have an open, modal sound (but with lots of notes). The melodic lines, always sharply etched against the accompaniment, often follow the pattern of a gapped scale and nearly always descend. Thus, an ascent becomes a climactic device, and Hanson employs this very effectively.

The work calls for a large orchestra, with the winds every bit as important as the strings, often more so. The performance was very exciting, colorful and energetic.

Benefit violin recital

THE CARMEL BACH FESTIVAL Associates will present a violin recital by Christiane Edinger at 8 p.m. Tuesday, April 1 in Sunset Theater, Carmel. Edinger has been a featured soloist at the Carmel Bach Festival for a number of years and recently made her debut at Carnegie Hall. She was a winner of the 1975 German Critics Award for Music when she was cited for her excellence in both the contemporary and classical repertoire. Edinger plays an Amati violin made in 1623. Recital tickets are $8, which is tax deductible. For reservations, call 624-2788. Sunset Theater is on San Carlos Street at Ninth Avenue in Carmel.

Marina Five Miler converts town into racetrack

The fifth annual Marina Five Miler will be run Saturday, March 29 in that seaside community.

The race is scheduled to begin at 9:30 a.m. in Marina City Park, 3200 Del Monte Blvd. Runners will travel paved roads throughout Marina. Most of the course will be flat with some rolling hills, and there will be an aid station at the end of the race.

Two new features have been added to the event this year. The first is the Hyatt pastry booth. Oakland Ballet to dance in Carmel

MICHAEL LOWE AND Julie Lowe dance Ronn Guidi's Selections from the Seasons with the Oakland Ballet, scheduled to appear at Sunset Theater in Carmel. Workshop assists caregivers to the elderly

A workshop primarily designed for children, spouses and other caregivers of a dependent older person will be offered from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesday, April 30 at the Pacific Grove Community Center, 515 Junipero, in Pacific Grove. The workshop will present information on the stress and problems created by caring for an aging parent or relative.

To register send name and fee to Friendly Visitor Program, 200 Glenwood Circle, Monterey, 93940, or call the Friendly Visitor office at 649-1222. Registration will also be available at the door.

With people living into their 80s and 90s or longer, more "adult children" are put in the position of having to cope with caring for a dependent parent and at the same time meet the obligations of spouse, family and job. These demands often create divisions in the caregiver's own family, time from work and financial, legal and other social problems.

At Reid Gallery ...

Images of whimsy pervade Doug Webb serigraphs

LIBERTY RENEWED, the newest limited edition serigraph by Doug Webb, will be unveiled this weekend at Reid Gallery in The Barnyard, Carmel.

Reid Gallery is the exclusive representative of Webb's work on the Central Coast. Champagne will be served to guests who visit the Carmel gallery on Saturday and Sunday, March 29-30.

"I take a simple object — a glass, a boat, a building — and put it into a situation, and all of a sudden it becomes a symbol of something much larger."

These are the words Webb uses to describe the images he creates. Born in Istanbul, Turkey in 1946 (where his father served as a U.S. Army intelligence officer), Webb was raised mainly in California. Basically self-taught, he began his career as an artist working in watercolors.

Webb says he actually began his career as a realist, painting portraits and images precisely as he or his audience would see them. But what interested him most in these early works was the juxtaposition he saw between reality and illusion, perception and imagination.

"I've been influenced by many artists," says Webb. "Hieronymus Bosch, Michaelangelo, Dali and Magritte, among others. But I am also influenced by a trash can, or a fire hydrant, or a crushed-up tube of toothpaste."

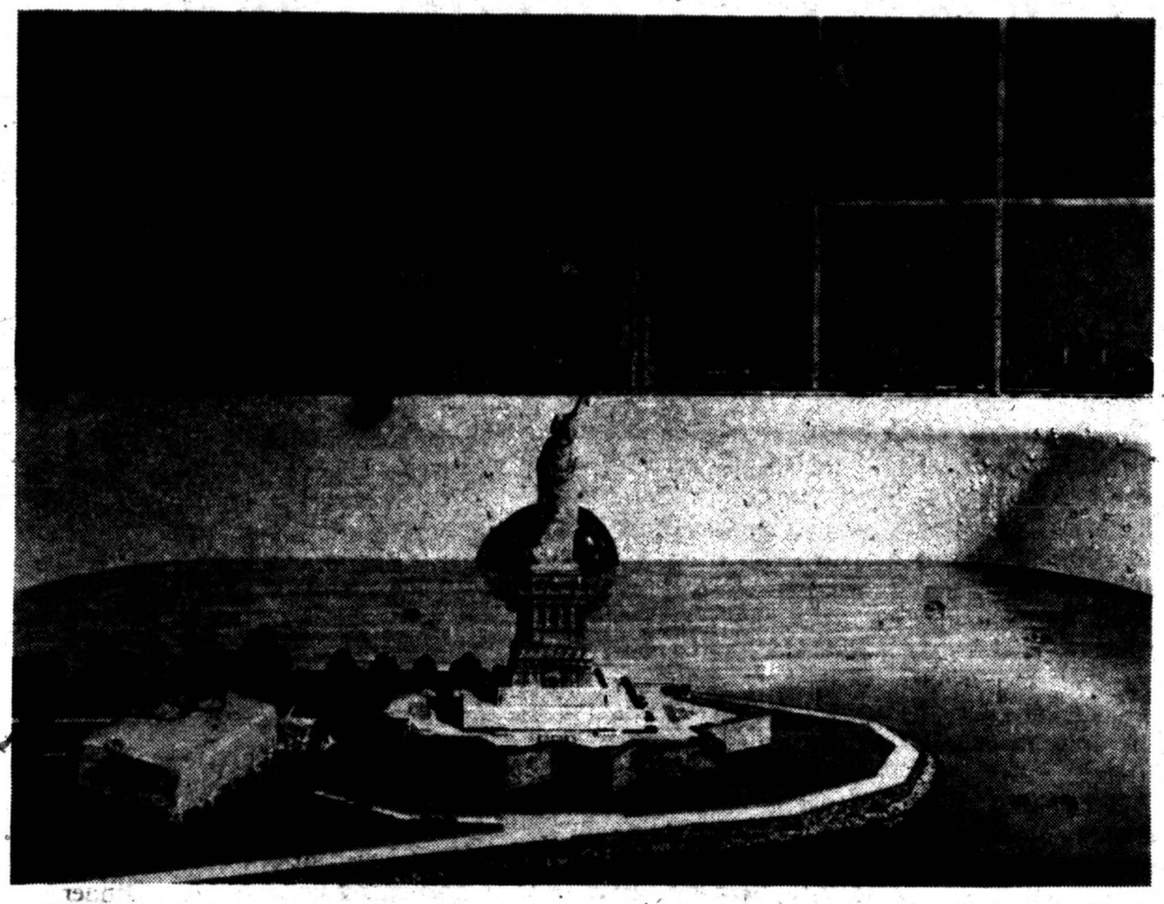
Whimsical and humorous though it is, a Doug Webb painting begins as a very serious undertaking. Once he's settled on an image in his mind, Webb sketches out the subject first. Next, he will travel to wherever he must go to take 35mm photographs of the mountains, buildings, sailboats or whatever he needs to see before he paints. Over the next few days he will construct a scale model of his composite picture, usually out of clay. Soon after, he will begin painting a project that can take up to six months to complete, employing exaggerated contrasts of light and dark, line and form, with the masterful use of glaze upon color upon glaze upon color.

"I will often go to elaborate extremes," he says, "just to get things exactly right. People look at my paintings, (like the one of L.A. City Hall with the Olympic rings tossed over it), and they'll ask me when it was that they put the rings on City Hall."

Writing in California: Idioms of Surrealism, art critic Marie de Alcuaz describes the sensory effect of Doug Webb's work: "...the unreal, unpredictable shifts of nature become tangible through the utilization of vivid detail. In Urban Daydream #4 one can feel the spray of the ocean in the breeze, yet there is no ocean..."

"Taking the methods of landscape and city-scape from the Photorealists, he combines the same approach to still life, and produces a unique composite image," says John Deckert of Arts Magazine.

For more information about Webb's work, contact Reid Gallery at 624-4243.



LIBERTY RENEWED, a 30-by-37-inch limited edition serigraph by Doug Webb, can be viewed at Reid Gallery in The Barnyard, Highway 1 and Carmel Valley Road, Carmel.

Bill W. Dodge poster depicts landmark N.Y. restaurant

AN AUTOGRAPHING event and preview of a poster of Tavern on the Green in New York City's Central Park, will take place from 1 to 5 p.m. Saturday, March 29, at the Dodge Gallery, Carmel, prior to its introduction April 3-7 at ArtExpo New York 1986.

The new work by Bill W. Dodge has been adopted as the official poster of the dining establishment, whose management has purchased the original painting and poster copyright, with plans to recreate the art as a jigsaw puzzle and as decorative and fashion accessories. Warner LeRoy, son of the late Hollywood producer Mervyn LeRoy, is the owner and Bruce Axler manager of the "Tavern," which is host to thousands of visitors weekly.

The poster, titled "Shepherd in a Time Warp," marks Dodge's third annual New York poster created for ArtExpo New York, which attracts more than 100,000 visitors during the four-day event. This year the fine arts fair was selected to open the new Jacob K. Javits Convention Center named in honor of the senator who died March 7.

A Carmel resident, Dodge created the Americana Collection for Libby, McNeill & Libby and has executed numerous commissions for corporations in the United States and Canada. His "Carmel: The Poster," published last month, is attracting orders nation-wide.

Asked about "Shepherd in a Time Warp," Dodge explained, "The shepherd and his sheep entering the painting middle right was inspired by the fact that the 'tavern' itself in Central Park was a sheepfold, devoted to raising sheep, in the 1890s. The sheepherder has returned to stare in wonder at the transformation during the intervening years."

The public is invited to join the artist for "coffee and..." at the autographing event Saturday. The gallery is located on Dolores Street near Fifth, across the street from the Carmel Art Association. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday, but the gallery will be closed this Sunday, March 30, for Easter.

BILL W. DODGE'S latest poster depicts Tavern on the Green, dining establishment in New York City's Central Park, with part of Gotham's famous skyline in the background. All the glitter of the famous gathering place, which is host to stretch limos and New York City cabbies, is counterpointed with the park's traditional horse and carriage and joggers in shorts from the surrounding park. The poster will be previewed at the Dodge Gallery from 1 to 5 p.m. Saturday, March 29.

Jacquelynn Kresman works conceived at ocean's edge

JACQUELYNN KRESMAN will be present during a reception honoring the one-woman show of her newest seascapes. The reception will take place from 5 to 9 p.m. Saturday, March 29 at Simic Galleries, San Carlos Street at Sixth Avenue in Carmel.

Looking back to her childhood, Kresman recalls the impact that the sea had upon her life. Living close to the ocean throughout her formative years, she would spend her free hours exploring the tide pools and climbing the rocks and jetties along the San Diego coastline. Choosing a sketch pad over toys and television, her spirit came alive at the ocean's edge, collecting shells, mollusks and seaweed to draw at home. Her sketch pad traveled everywhere with her, and she remembers asking people to "be still" while she drew them in grocery stores and on the street.

Her parents bought her a large blackboard to aid her in school, and she remembers using it to draw a new picture every night.

"My mind has always been inventive," Kresman explains. "I'd think of a place in my mind, and my hand would draw it. Sometimes these places were real, other times imaginary — but on the blackboard — whether real or not, each scene came to life." With a thankful look to her face she adds, "I was very lucky having such supportive parents. Even if a picture wasn't good, they still praised me, therefore I never felt defeated when it came to art."

As Kresman grew older her interest toward the sea remained strong and she contemplated a career which would allow her continual contact with the ocean. Not thinking she could support herself by her artistic talent alone, Kresman studying marine biology and oceanography at Scripps Institute in La Jolla in hopes of enlisting with a team of researchers to explore the ocean and to operate underwater camera equipment.

In the meantime, Kresman continued her artwork, adding detail to her style, as she learned more about the sea and its creatures. Finally after several years of study, she realized that painting was more important to her than following structured lab procedures, and she began devoting herself full time to her art career.

Today she comments, "Thank goodness I have been able to intermesh my love for art with my love for the sea. It's like living in the best of two worlds. I never want to be anything but an artist. I am appreciative of my gift and I realize how lucky I am: By being an artist my career travels with me...when I went to the Caribbean I painted the ocean, its beaches and richly foliaged sea cliffs. The inspiration was incredible...now I'm getting ready for my next excursion abroad.

"There is something special about working outside. You watch color changes happening before you — and you testify to the titanic force of the sea as it pounds barnacle-bedded reefs and explodes like a geyser. You can't help but have the impact of this display enter your work." Kresman adds, "Those times when weather or time does not allow me to paint outdoors, I refer to snapshots taken on previous excursions."

When talking about the changes she is experiencing in her art, Kresman comments, "More and more I am putting people in my compositions since I find the human form adds a new dimension to seascape art. I paint people building sandcastles...gathering shellfish from tide pools...and playing cards on the beach. We can all identify with these activities, and it puts us in the 'here and now' of sitting on the sand and reliving a moment we have enjoyed."

'Oil and Water' do mix in group show at RLS

IN A RARE confluence four old pros will display their paintings in a show in the Samuel F.B. Morse Gallery of the Robert Louis Stevenson School in Pebble Beach. This exhibit will open March 28, a Friday, and close April 25.

The artists involved are Carl Bowman, Sam Colburn, John Stark and Jay Hannah. They thought of several titles, "Four Friends," "The Society of Friends," "Los Quatros," but finally decided on "Oil and Water." It happens that both Carl Bowman and Jay Hannah paint in oil, but John Stark and Sam Colburn are addicted to watercolor.

Of the four, Carl Bowman was the first who felt the urge to paint, and had a one-man show at the East West Gallery in San Francisco while still in high school. He exhibited in the annual competitive of the San Francisco Art Association in 1929, '30 and '32. Among his friends of the time were Alice Brown Chittenden and E. Spencer McKay. Bowman studied at the California School of Fine Arts which was being run by Lee Randolph. He stopped painting in 1932, went into business, and did not emerge from that until 1975. He has been exhibiting since that time and had a painting accepted in the recent Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art show.

Sam Colburn will be the only artist in this particular assemblage who saw Buffalo Bill, who was quite dead but looked fine, as Junior and his parents went by his bier in Denver, Colo.

When Colburn got out of college and had spent a year in Europe, he decided not to be a big rock man from Boulder. He started going to life drawing classes at the Chouinard School of Art in Los Angeles. He had one of the great teachers of that period, whose name was Don Graham. The school had advertised that they were starting a life study group at 10 cents per hour, but the only person who answered was Colburn.

He had about three lessons in that medium from Paul Whitman, but outside of that is self-taught. He draws a lot, and has painted in oil, acrylic and on tile. Colburn has had a number of one-man shows including one at the Ranch Inn in Elko, Nev. The latter had critics, among the ranchers at least. One of them on viewing Colburn's haystack, said, "Hell, we'd hang a man for piling a stack of hay like that."

Colburn was admitted to membership in the Carmel Art Association in 1940, and has been a member longer than anyone else. He has shown at the Monterey County Fair just about every year for the past 35 and has taken a number of awards.

SAM COLBURN, longest running member of the Carmel Art Association, is represented in the group show at Robert Louis Stevenson School in Pebble Beach. His Carmel 1984 is a 27-by-33-inch watercolor that depicts the present-day hurly burly of the town.

CARMEL ARTIST John Stark created Panic, a 19-by-13-inch watercolor and ink image that can be viewed in the S.F.B. Morse Gallery at Robert Louis Stevenson School in Pebble Beach.

John Stark came from the East. That is not quite right. It was Cincinnati, Ohio, which, as far as New Englanders are concerned, is certainly the Middle if not the Far West. His career as a painter began in 1970. He studied at the Cincinnati Art Academy and also worked under Lee Everett, Tony Van Hasslett, Arthur L. Helwig, Tom Hill, Paul Strisik and Millard Welles.

His images in the middle '70s concerned themselves with the geometry, distortions and reflections of the urban scene. At that time his watercolors also incorporated transparent screen prints to enhance the images. During that period he exhibited primarily in Ohio, and his work is represented in numerous private and corporate collections there. In the early '80s he and his wife moved to Carmel.

His works on paper have been exhibited in several galleries in Cincinnati, and he also had a show at the Staircase Gallery in Louisville, Ky. Since being out here he has had exhibits at the Pacific Grove Art Center, Margot's Cafe in Pacific Grove and the Carmel Valley Manor, and has been hung in the 20th Annual Watercolor Show at the Museum of Natural History in Pacific Grove and the Monterey Peninsula Foundation of Art exhibit in Seaside.

Jay Hannah has been a member of the Carmel Art Association for many years. He attended the Grande Chaumiere on the Left Bank in Paris. This is an institute which is run like a movie house. It is an all-day life study session. You buy a ticket at the entrance which entitles you to go in and draw. Nude models pose in shifts.

Jay was inspired to paint by Selden Gile who was part of the famed Society of Six. The others were August Gay, Louis Siegrist, Von Eichman, Maurice Logan and a Pointillist by the name of Clapp.

Jay went to Stanford where he achieved a major in art and a minor in music. He also attended the California School of Fine Arts. He has spent the past 12 years in working out his theories of color perception in paint. In general this applied thought involves "hot" and "cold" color. It is no new idea that hot colors advance and cold recede, but actual painting involves tones and gradations. Distance has much to do with color also. For instance, some of the great tents that are put over buildings when they are being fumigated have red and green areas. From a distance the green drops out, and you see just a red shape in the sky.

Jay, Sam and Carl are all afflicted with golf, but then so was John Marin.

Weber

CITY GRANTS TO CBA

Weber said he would listen to any proposal the Carmel Business Association would make for city assistance.

However, before he provided any funds Weber would want to ensure that the money would help the city and not tourists and businesses.

SECOND KITCHENS

Weber favors legalization of second kitchens, but wants to see rents "closely monitored" to ensure that the units are kept affordable.

MISSION RANCH

"It's not a matter of whether to buy it. It's a matter of what to use it for," Weber said.

Weber proposes a public vote on the property, but would like to see the city develop a public swimming pool on the site.

Fischer

that there is some local control over any development.

"Annexation would put it under city control and city approval," he said.

Fischer would like to see Mission Ranch remain in its present state rather than being developed for homes and condominiums.

CITY HALL PLANS

"I think the present city hall structure works very efficently," he said.

"I also find a city council tendency to rubber stamp proposals coming out of the city administration. I would like to see the council take a more leadership role," he said.

GAMBLE ESTATE

Fischer does not think the city should be in a position of buying and then reselling real estate.

He thinks the city should use existing land use controls to ensure proper planned development rather than resorting to buying sites.

FLANDERS MANSION

Fischer thinks the city should sell the mansion and an acre of land with deed restrictions.

"The building itself is not really in a good location for anything other than residential use," he said.

Lampson

at doing that kind of thing. Do you think we're desperate for resident-oriented business?"

CITY GRANTS TO CBA

Lampson does not think it would serve a useful purpose to grant funds to the Carmel Business Association.

HATTON CANYON FREEWAY

"That is such a massive undertaking that I truthfully couldn't answer what to do. You're looking at something that's going to make a big, big difference."

Clint photo book to be available

An eight-page photo magazine entitled On the Trail With Clint is to be released Friday, March 28 to benefit the Carmel Youth Center.

The magazine will sell for $3, of which $1 will be donated to the Carmel Youth Center.

On the Trail With Clint will chronicle in photographs the campaign of world-famous actor Clint Eastwood as he seeks to become mayor of Carmel. The election is April 8.

Pine Cone photographer Holly McFarland and Associate Editor Michael Gardner donated several images for the magazine. Freelance photographers Lisa von Saltza and John Livingstone also contributed. A political cartoon by Ken Fadem also is included.

The magazine is being produced by Saltza, Bruce Roberts and Phyllis Howard.

It will be available at Bruno's Market, Casa Dolores Gallery in Carmel Plaza, Carmel Drug Store and Fortier's Drug Store.

Initial press run is 5,000.

Special Dimensions will be showing their fashion styles for the full-figured woman at the Fabric and Fashion Show April 19 at Monterey Peninsula College.

Special Dimensions: For the larger-size fashions

Providing original and custom-design clothing for the large-size woman makes Special Dimensions, located in Reimer's Stonehouse Terrace on San Carlos at Seventh Street, a very special store indeed.

If you fall into the large-size category, you know how hard it is to find flattering, fashionable clothing. That's why you need to know about Special Dimensions, a small boutique specializing in sizes 14-22.

Here you'll find a wide variety of styles, all original creations by Judith Amidon (her mother Sylvia owns the store), and all designed with the larger woman in mind.

"I concentrate on framing the face because that's the prettiest part of anybody," Judith explains, "and I use a variety of pretty, soft, flowing fabrics so that I can add fullness to the garment without adding bulk."

Of course wearability is a prime consideration, so Judith makes sure every garment is functional and easy-care as well as fashionable.

Most of the clothes you'll find at Special Dimensions are for everyday wear, but formal styles are available on a custom-design basis.

Fashions from the shop will be included in "The Sunday Stroll," a fashion show scheduled for April 20 at the Rancho Canada Golf Course, but don't wait until then to discover the special collection of clothes you'll find at Special Dimensions. The store is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday.

You'll find the store, located on Ocean and San Carlos in Carmel, literally bursting with clothing in the season's hottest new colors, orange and green.

There are coulottes, long shorts, patterned and knit tops, pants and skirts, as well as an exciting line of summer clothing from Christian Dior. M'Lady Bruhn even has a charming sweater covered in a vegetable motif. What fun!

Tank tops and T-shirts worn under blazers are the new, casual look for spring, according to Manager Jill Hadaway, and you'll also be seeing cardigans with knit shirts underneath. But, when it comes to dresses, the word this season is romantic.

M'Lady Bruhn is featuring a beautiful new line of silk dresses from Joanie Char. In soft pastels and flower prints, they're just the thing to wear in those upcoming weddings.

Dress creations by Diane Frez are "bigger and better than ever" this spring, according to Hadaway, with new fabrications featuring tropical birds, fish and butterflies. These original designs made of wrinkle-free polyester are easy wear and easy care.

To complement the new spring clothes, M'Lady Bruhn has necklaces by Ginnie Johansen, as well as exciting new earrings, belts and perfume.

As always, you can depend on M'Lady Bruhn for personalized, one-on-one customer service and fast, free alterations. The store is open 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday (Fridays until 7:30 p.m.) and 10:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Sundays.

M'Lady Bruhn on Ocean Avenue in Carmel has a well-deserved reputation for offering high quality, yet fashionable, clothing and this spring is no exception. The place is bursting with fresh fashions and bright colors, just in time for spring.

Command Performance: They take hair seriously

What do you want? Where do you work and what type of job do you have? What is your lifestyle?

Sounds like a questionnaire from a dating service, but if you knew that at the same time you were being asked these questions you were seated in front of a mirror with a towel around your neck, you'd know you were at Command Performance in Monterey.

They take their hairstyling seriously at Command Performance, and really try to help you get a style which suits your work and leisure activities. They also want to know how much time you have or want to spend maintaining your hairstyle. Putting the answers to your questions together with your hair type, head shape and bone structure, the stylists can help you look great in the office, behind a jackhammer or on the tennis courts.

Perhaps it's this attention to detail, which Command Performance calls "The Method," which has earned them the job of exclusive stylist to the "Bridal Extravaganza" held at the San Jose Fairgrounds. The job entails all the hairstyling for the male and female models who are showing the latest bridal fashions from simple satin to elaborate lace. This experience can help the bride who has selected a dress and hat or veil, but still hasn't decided what to do with her hair. Stylists at Command Performance are happy to work with you, and your hat or veil, to achieve the look you want.

Brides...bring in your wedding invitation, and the Monterey Command Performance will give the entire wedding party, male and female, a 10 percent discount.

At the Beach on Carmel Rancho Lane is the perfect place to go for a tan on those foggy spring days on the peninsula, all in a relaxed, air-conditioned atmosphere, complete with five-channel stereo headphones and Wolff Profi sunbeds, one of the best in the business.

Want a great looking tan? get yourself to At the Beach

No time for surf and sand, yet you want a great tan? You'll find it in the relaxed atmosphere of At the Beach, a tanning salon located at 26352 Carmel Rancho Lane in Carmel.

Opened in September, the salon, owned by Bill Lee and Marc Berger, simulates the relaxing atmosphere of the seaside with beach accessories and luxurious private tanning rooms (not booths), complete with five-channel stereo headphones and air conditioning.

"We're trying to create a fun, beachy feeling where you can tan for 20 minutes once or twice a week and keep a beautiful tan all year round," says Berger. "Why worry if it's foggy or cold on the beach if you can get your tan At the Beach?"

The salon features 11 Wolff Profi sunbeds. Berger explains that Wolff Profi's most significant contribution to tanning is that it allows you to remain cool while tanning because it has fans built right into the edges of the bed. It's a controlled environment that simulates the tanning rays of the sun while almost eliminating those that are harmful to skin.

Tanning sessions are priced individually or in packages of seven to 20 sessions. Of course, you might want to take advantage of At the Beach's great special of 99 sessions for 99 days for $99.

Finally, for those who prefer to get a tan the old-fashioned way, At the Beach also sells chic beach accessories, cosmetics and shirts.

The salon is open 7:30 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Friday; 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday.

Enchanted Brides: The complete wedding shop

If you're planning a wedding, you don't have time to visit several stores to coordinate bridal fashions and accessories. That's why you'll want to visit Enchanted Brides of Monterey.

Located upstairs at 498 Foam Street, Enchanted Brides of Monterey is a complete bridal shop with more than 200 wedding gowns in stock, as well as a wide selection of bridesmaid's and mother's dresses, shoes, gloves, hats, veils and even invitations and referrals for tuxedo rentals.

What's new in bridal fashions this year is really what's old. It's the very traditional style dresses with elaborate beadwork and long trains that are popular, says Sally Curatolo, owner of the shop. She also notes that many of today's brides are older (25 and up), and are interested in a more sophisticated look such as a straight style dress with a detachable train.

For a slightly more informal wedding, tea length dresses are very popular, for brides and bridesmaids alike.

To top off the dress, hats are still popular, but Curatolo says it's elaborate headpieces with attached, over-the-face veils that are the biggest news in bridal fashion this year.

Whether your choice is traditional or contemporary, you're sure to find the dress that's just right for you and your bridesmaids at Enchanted Brides of Monterey. And, the large inventory ensures that you'll find a dress to fit your budget too.

When it comes to wedding fashions, make Enchanted Brides of Monterey your one-stop place to shop. The store is open 10:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday; 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday; and noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

Enchanted Brides of Monterey can coordinate your wedding fashions totally, from bridal gowns to accessories. More than 200 wedding gowns are in stock, as well as a wide selection of bridesmaid and mother's dresses and accessories.

The March Hare is it, whether it's your nails, hair or makeup that needs a lift. Four highly-skilled hair professionals — Kathe, Nancy, Joyce and Catherine Renee — are available to cut, style, color or perm your hair, as well as manicures and makeup applications.

For hair, nails and makeup, The March Hare does it all

Need a new look, a new feel for spring? There's only one place to go and that's to the talented, skilled staff at The March Hare salon, on the southeast corner of Mission Street and Fifth Avenue in Carmel.

Whether it's your nails, hair or make-up that needs a lift, The March Hare can help. Four highly skilled hair professionals are available to cut, style, color or perm your hair, handling everything from ultra-contemporary to classic styles, while Kathe is able to provide everything from manicures to body waxing and make-up applications.

Hair tinting is not a job Nancy takes lightly. She works closely with a customer in choosing color, taking into consideration eye and skin color, wardrobe colors and even lifestyle. Nancy often does corrective coloring as well as highlighting to enhance haircuts, using the Goldwell Hair Color System, a protein-based coloring product she calls the finest in the world. Says Nancy, "It's superior in every way. The color lasts longer, is richer, and leaves hair shinier."

Joyce, a stylist trained by Sebastian, brings two years' experience to March Hare. Haircuts and perms are her forte and she is especially proficient at current hairstyles, both long and short, which require lots of layering.

Hair professional Catherine Renee has received extensive training by Sassoon and Tony and Guy of London during her 12 years in the business. She's a self-described perfectionist when it comes to her work, providing cuts and perms for both men and women, and she believes in keeping up with the newest in hair fashions and techniques.

Shop owner and stylist Mary Anna, with 16 years experience, is constantly attending seminars and classes to keep up on the latest in the hair fashion industry. Hair cuts and perms are her specialties, but she also enjoys French braiding and working with longer hair.

Providing clients with personal, individual attention is important to Mary Anna. "I like to work with a client for a total individual look." That dedication is especially apparent when it comes to giving perms. "I am unique in my way of perming because I devote the time it takes to care for a client's individual hair needs and if it's fine or problem hair I work with them to restore and recondition it," she said.

Kathe, who has been at March Hare two and a half years, is a specialist in all areas of nail care, able to accomodate manicures, pedicures, sculptured nails and silk wraps.

Skin care and make-up application is another specialty of this talented lady. Using Del Monte products, an Italian line using all natural ingredients, Kathe can show you how to get and keep your skin in shape, as well as make-up tricks that will help you to look your best.

Finally, Kathe does body waxing of all kinds as well as ear piercing.

Call March Hare, 624-3024, for an appointment today and put this talented team to work for you. The salon is open Monday through Saturday (Wednesday and Thursday evenings by appointment only).

Hilda Ltd. of Iceland
Can it improve on perfection?

How can you improve on perfection? Well, Hilda Ltd. has done it, by combining the timeless beauty of Icelandic wool with fashion-forward styling.

There's classic two-piece suits for women with European-style jackets and straight skirts, long pullover sweaters that can be worn alone as a dress or layered over stirrup pants or tights, fully lined lightweight flannel wool pants, as well as the woolen hood wrap, so popular in Europe now.

Hilda Ltd.'s traditional sweaters for women have taken on a new flair with wool dyed to an icy blue and soft mauve. In lightweight wool, they're perfect for the year-round Carmelite.

For men there's jackets and sweaters with new eye-catching designs, as well as vests.

But, don't worry, Hilda Ltd. still carries all those jackets, sweaters, capes, coats, hooded pullovers and accessories that you've come to love.

If you've never heard of Hilda Ltd., then you might wonder what's so special about these Icelandic woolens. The secret, you see, is in the sheep. Or more specifically, in their fleece. Introduced into Iceland 1,000 years ago by Vikings, the sheep have evolved a long outer coat for protection against wind and rain, a thick inner fleece for warmth, and a wool rich in moisture and soil-resistant lanolin.

The centuries of breeding have produced hundreds of subtle earth and dark sky tones in the wool's color — all natural shades created by Mother Nature herself. The result is 100 percent natural warmth and beauty, without the weight.

With the exception of the rose and blue tones, Hilda Ltd., continues to produce the majority of clothing, including the new fashion-forward line in the natural colors of the sheep.

Come and see the new, innovative ways Hilda Ltd. can work with wool. The Carmel store, located on Ocean Avenue (between San Carlos and Dolores streets), is open 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday; and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Not only is Hilda Ltd. expanding on its clothing line, but also its line of stores. You'll now find stores devoted exclusively to Hilda fashions in San Francisco, Boston, Pittsburgh, Barbados, and St. Thomas, Virgin Islands.

Hilda Ltd. is always improving on perfection by combining the timeless beauty of Icelandic wool with fashion-forward styling. The secret is in the rich fleece of Icelandic sheep and innovative ways of using it, all trademarks of Hilda Ltd.'s fashions.

Carmel Pendleton means wool, but it's cotton fashions too

Don't get the wool pulled over your eyes. While it's true that Pendleton is famous for wool clothing, they do produce clothing in other materials.

This spring you'll find at Carmel Pendleton, Sixth and San Carlos, a beautiful collection of two-piece suits for women. Made of silk, rayon and polyester in a contemporary but classic styling, the suits come in eye-catching spring colors like pink, rose, white, tan, navy and kelly green. Coordinated cotton tops in short and long sleeve styles provide a more casual look.

Perfect for spring and summer are plaid skirts, blouses and shorts. Made of cotton, they come in a variety of colors, including brights, pastels and black and white, and look great alone or topped with a solid-color sweater vest.

For men, there's silk and polyester blend two-piece suits in rose, tan and blue, as well as cotton and wool blend sweaters.

Men will especially enjoy Pendleton's sport and leisure outfits. Made of cotton and cotton-polyester blends, they're perfect for shopping, jogging or a stroll on the beach.

Men's lightweight jackets, available in several colors, are just right for cool summer nights.

You know Pendleton can do great things with wool and you'll still be able to find all your old favorites at Carmel Pendleton, but stop by and take a look at what they can do with cotton.

Just one of the many colorful combinations of cool cotton separates in new spring/summer collection from Carmel Pendleton, San Carlos and Sixth in Carmel.

No matter the season or the occasion, there's one store you can't afford to do without. That's Surf 'n Sand, located on the corner of Sixth and Junipero in Carmel.

It truly is the "greatest drug store in town" offering everything from prescription and over-the-counter drugs to gifts, unusual cards for all occasions, liquor, and a full line of cosmetics and fragrances.

This spring, owner Sandy Wise is featuring skin care products and cosmetics from Lancome (a brand she carries all year round). Get your skin in shape with Lancome's unique cleansing and moisturizing program, available for a variety of skin types, and when you're ready to hit the beach for a tan, take along Lancome's sunscreens, anti-wrinkle agents and moisturizers. Some of the formulas contain ingredients which encourage tanning by working with your body's own natural tanning process and protection system.

You'll find all these products at Surf 'n Sand, as well as Lancome's spring make-up collection, Les Parasols du Printemps, which includes a beautiful eye color quartet. Brides-to-be (or anyone) will want to make an appointment for a facial and complimentary make-over with Lancome's newest line.

Sandy also has some wonderful new fragrances for spring, including Coriandre by Jean Couturier for women and Assaro for men (made in America, it's a top-selling fragrance in Europe.)

In the gift department, you'll find gifts for all ages and occasions. If you're shopping for a wedding, some great ideas include cast iron pans in decorator colors, knives, glassware, accessories for entertaining, and dishes.

Best of all, shopping is hassle-free at Surf 'n Sand. There's plenty of free parking right in front of the store and very flexible hours.

Spring cleaning is a treat with Marielle's "A Day of Beauty." The five-hour regimen begins with a deep cleansing facial, followed by a relaxing body massage (Marielle says she has the best masseuse on the peninsula), French pedicure, manicure, hair treatment and styling, and a makeup consultation and application. A delicious, nutritious lunch is even included. Wouldn't it be a wonderful way for the bride-to-be (as well as bridemaids and mothers) to prepare for the wedding?

Of course all of Marielle's special services are available a la carte, including dimensional hair coloring, hair styling, body massage, manicures, pedicures, makeup applications and facials.

Marielle's deep cleansing facials go a long way toward getting skin back in shape and leaving you with a healthy glow. Customized to fit your particular skin needs, the treatment lasts one-and-a-half hours and includes hand manipulation, masks and steaming, as well as a complimentary make-up application.

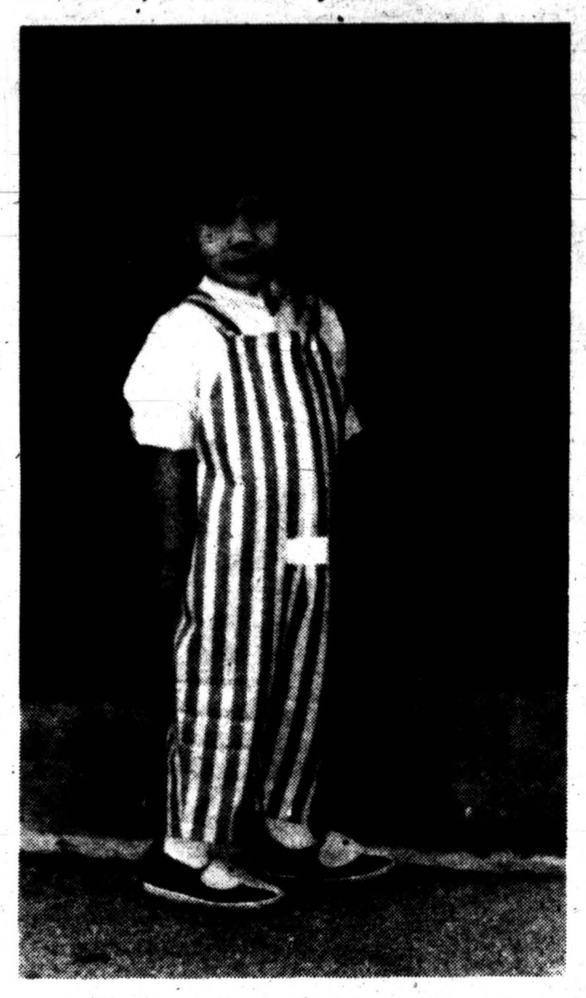
Nutritional seminars are held monthly at the salon to provide customers with information on nutrition, weight loss and pre-menstrual syndrome. Call for more information.

Finally, as an added service, Marielle is expanding her salon to include an exclusive lingerie shop. It is scheduled to open in April.

Get in shape for spring. Call Marielle's at 625-5588 today for an appointment. With Mother's Day just around the corner, keep in mind that gift certificates are available.

From toys to kids' clothing, Pebbles store has got it all

If there's an adorable little one in your life (chances are you can think of at least one) then you need to know about Pebbles, an unusually adorable clothing shop for children sizes infant to 6X.



Pebbles shop for children has everything from toys to clothes, including these durable cotton overalls with quilted knees. (Lacy Weathers photograph.)

Featured this spring is an especially large selection of dresses by Mousefeathers and others. Although they're made in America, they feature a European design and come in an array of soft, feminine colors. Perfect for Easter, they come in sizes 2T to 6X.

For summer, you'll find the latest in fashion shorts, suspender culottes and bright-colored sweaters. Pebbles also has the spring line of clothes from Merona in sizes 4 to 6X.

For the beach baby in the family, Pebbles has a wide selection of swimwear complete with cover-ups.

But lately, sunny days have been scarce, so you'll be pleased to know that Pebbles has a nice selection of rainwear in sizes infant to 6X. They come in bright, primary colors with umbrellas to match.

You'll also find a large collection of those often hard-to-find children's accessories at Pebbles, including jewelry, barrettes, charm necklaces, Disney suspenders, dainty socks, solid-colored socks, and cute, yet practical, computer-print socks with grippers on the bottom to prevent slipping.

In the toy section of the store, you'll find a new collection of books. Simple and easy-to-read, they're just right for the pre-schooler. Check out the collection of craft items for children, as well as the stuffed animals — Pebbles has put together a very huggable collection of furry animals.

Pebbles, located right across from The Lodge at Pebble Beach, is open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday. 624-7829.

Astrid's Hair Studio in Monterey has the expertise to help clients decide which cut, body wave, perm or hair color they need to achieve the look they want, including computer haircoloring with more than 71,000 formulas to select from.

Astrid's Hair Studio: For high-tech haircoloring

Remember when you could "tell" whether or not someone was a "natural blonde"? When the only way to achieve even summer highlights was with a bottle of peroxide, and some "blondes" were afraid to swim in a chlorinated pool for fear their hair might turn green?

Fears about haircoloring are now a thing of the past. Computer technology has arrived to take the worry out of being blonde, brunette, redhead, or nowadays, almost any color you want!

At Astrid's Hair Studio, 467 Alvarado Street in Monterey, Astrid and her daughter Michelle have the expertise to help their clients decide which cut, body wave, perm or hair color they need to achieve the look they want. And with Computer Hair Coloring by Goldwell, a German product, "haircoloring is a science," states Astrid. "With this system the customer comes in for a free color consultation, and with the help of the Goldwell computer program one of over 71,000 formulas is selected for you."

Another plus to this new product is that the formulas are only 2 percent ammonia, instead of the 80 percent solutions which used to curl your toes as well as color your hair.

Now that changing one's hair color is less risky and liable to result in the dry, brittle, dull, damaged and artificial look associated with the "dye job" of the past, anyone can consider starting out her new and brighter spring look with "computer controlled" hair coloring. So start your new look at the "top."

Contemporary and fashion-forward styles by fresh, young designers are what you'll discover at Borsella Art and Dress, a unique clothing gallery on Lincoln Avenue in the Pine Inn building between Ocean and Sixth.

Here, owner Dee Borsella treats fashion as art, showcasing the partial or complete collections of up to 15 designers at a time. "It's a unique showplace for exclusive designs in art fashions and wearable art," she explains.

Featured from March 28 until April 18 are the entire collections of local resident and designer Lynn Whittier and San Franciscan Deborah Valoma.

Whittier, who holds a bachelor's degree in fine arts, specializes in accessory pins. She began by designing with gold, ivory, precious and semi-precious stones, but in the last year her work has progressed to include non-metal items such as bamboo, buttons, beads, fabric and an assortment of "found" objects. These very textured creations are then treated with a 22-carat gold leaf. Her accessories range from small objects to large stylized pieces.

Valoma, a designer for many years, works with wool, linens and silks to create fashion in outerwear coats. Trained at the Parsons School of Design and the Fashion Institute of Technology in New York, her coats are designed by the use of applique and patchwork in a post-modern style with geometric shapes and vivid colors.

An artists' reception is planned for 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Friday, March 28 at the shop. A fashion show, set for 1 p.m. Saturday, March 28 in the Pine Inn lobby, will feature Valoma's creations.

Of course everything you see at Borsella is for sale — after all, these one-of-a-kind fashions are designed to be worn — and there's accessories such as scarves, shoes and handbags to give a complete look.

Add a priceless piece of art to your wardrobe with a visit to Borsella. The shop is open from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday; 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Borsella's, a unique clothing gallery on Lincoln Avenue in the Pine Inn building between Ocean and Sixth in Carmel, offers contemporary, fashion-forward, even artistic styles by fresh, young designers.

Jeannie's a'Boutique: For a touch of the unique

Kim Elkins, owner, manager and buyer for Jeannie's a'Boutique at 208 Alvarado Mall in the Doubletree Hotel has put together what she likes to call "a very special boutique catering to the woman of distinctive taste who wants quality European and American designer apparel. It's a unique shop for unique customers."

Jeannie's a'Boutique in the Doubletree Inn is a very special boutique catering to the woman of distinctive taste who wants quality European and American designer apparel. A unique shop for unique customers.

Kim carries many French lines including Chacok, New Man and Michelle Sungari. For spring and summer you will find tailored dresses in light cottons and linens with "definite feminine styling," as Kim describes them. "Women's clothes are still becoming more feminine...a continued trend away from the unisex look. They're not sexy, in that they are skimpy or tight-fitting, but most definitely feminine."

Colors abound in Kim's selection of spring and summer merchandise. Amethyst, emerald green, fuschia and turquoise echo the jewel-toned fashions of last fall and winter. Patterns, textures and prints are prevalent with floral, animal, tropical and nautical motifs.

To accessorize her fashion selections, Jeannie's carries a line of simply styled sterling silver jewelry.

"I like to work with my customers, to help them find the look that is right for them," says Kim. "Just because everyone is wearing a certain style doesn't mean everyone can or should. I'm not afraid to tell a customer...'that's just not for you.'"

For distinctive merchandise, personalized service in selecting colors and styles, and an "honest" opinion, drop by Jeannie's a'Boutique and Kim will help you put your best look forward this spring.

Make sure that Gerry's is always on your shopping list

Whether you are planning a spring cruise, honeymoon or just enjoy being beautifully attired around the clock, Gerry's stores for women in two locations at 625 Cannery Row and 26366 Carmel Rancho Lane should be a stop on your spring shopping itinerary.

Both locations have features which will make selecting a sequined tank top, Italian leather suit or evening wear a la "Dynasty" a comfortable experience. Decorated in elegant soft sand colors with spacious three-way-mirrored consultation areas, Gerry's specializes in personal service. Their well-stocked bar will provide you with a favorite refreshment, from liqueurs to a Bloody Mary, further enhancing your shopping experience.

Proprietor Gerry Verga shops the fashion market selecting from the best European and American lines to stock her shops with merchandise which has a wide appeal. Classic looks are available from Robert Leonard, Lilli Ann, Robert Courtney, Baron Peters and Abe Schrader in suits and daytime to dinner dresses...many in the comfortable Ultrasuede and Facile fabrics.

Albert Nippon sportswear in silks or Alfred Sung separates in lightweight gabardines, linen and ramie provide an excellent selection for the office or more casual wear. Henry Grethel's line (he previously designed only for men) adds a tailored look to your wardrobe with waiter-cut jackets, pleated slacks and cotton knit '60s look sleeveless turtleneck tops.

For evenings, Gerry says, "the look is definitely long. Daywear this spring ranges from just above mid-calf to the knee, but at night the hems fall to the floor." The elegant evening look is available in dresses from Nolan Mille for "Dynasty." Beading, rhinestones, pearls and sequins add to the luxury of the long gowns.

To complete your fashion look, Gerry's carries accessories, including lines from Monise and Di Stefano, both featured in Italian Vogue. "Faux gems are still very popular," says Gerry, "and big earrings are a must."

Whether you are a classic or contemporary woman, or, like most, enjoy a mix of both styles, then the atmosphere, personalized service and fashions at Gerry's are just your style.

Anastasia's Gloria Ann Sharp began her career at 19 as an apprentice in Italy. Her Santa Cruz shop, 20th Century Frocks is run in the European custom design tradition. You'll enjoy personalized service in a sunny courtyard setting.

European silks and laces set Anastasia apart from rest

Original and custom design bridal gowns fashioned of European silks and laces are what set Anastasia apart from other bridal shops.

Located at 1547 Pacific Ave. in Santa Cruz (in the courtyard commons), Anastasia is an haute couture design house, noted for its one-of-a-kind bridal designs.

Here dresses are designed in-house for the customer by European-trained Gloria Sharp, shop owner and designer, using the customer's choice of fabric and lace. The result is a memorable dress, not the kind you see every day.

For spring, the trend at Anastasia is toward a more formal, sophisticated bridal gown. Silhouette or body-hugging sheath dresses as well as tea-length gowns are popular. Ruffles are in vogue, but are used in a sophisticated manner to make a statement.

To complement the dresses, Anastasia offers their own line of handmade hats, as well as veils, shoes and stockings.

The store also carries commercially made dresses from more than 50 designers and can order any gown made.

Or course, dance floors, band risers, and public address systems are available for the ultimate reception. Room set-up is flexible, if you have something special in mind, and decorated tables (in your choice of tablecloths) are provided for the wedding cake, gifts and guest registration.

The motel's wedding consultant service can make referrals or arrangements for photographers, bakeries, florists and musicians.

Regardless of where the reception is held, newlyweds should take advantage of the Monterey Holiday Inn's excellent honeymoon package. A per couple price of $259 includes three days, two nights in a deluxe ocean-view king leisure room, complimentary breakfast for two (both mornings) in the motel restaurant, a fruit basket with champagne and flowers upon arrival, round trip transportation between the airport and hotel, two tickets to the Monterey Bay Aquarium, and a beach tote bag.

Whether it's your reception or honeymoon, the Monterey Holiday Inn is sure to make it an event to remember. For more information, or reservations, call 384-3321.

Here you'll find 60 to 70 gowns for sale off the rack, with three to four new designs added to the collection each week. Each beautiful, finely constructed gown was designed and made right in this Aptos shop.

Bayje, who has been creating wedding gowns ever since high school graduation 16 years ago, emphasizes quality in each of the gowns she makes. Made of all-natural fabrics including embossed cottons, linens, silks and French laces, each dress has French seams and hand-sewn covered buttons with loops (you won't find zippers on a Bayje gown.) Beadwork is all done by hand, and, when the design calls for pearls, only real cultured pearls are used.

Bayje's newest designs feature sleeker lines, more detailing, large bows and low backs, and some come in off-the-shoulder styles.

To complete the look, Bayje, the daughter of a tailor, designs headpieces to complement the dresses.

Of course, custom-made dresses in your choice of fabrics are a specialty here, so if you have a dream dress in mind, Bayje can help make it into a reality.

Thinking that there's just no way you can afford a dress from Bayje? Think again. Bayje's creations are no more expensive than commercially made gowns. Prices range from $250 to $1,800 (that's for a silk dress with French lace and a hand-loomed French ribbon) with silk dresses available for as little as $600. Custom work starts at $350.

Bayje, located at the Deerpark Shopping Center in Aptos, is open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday; 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday.

Bridal Veil Fashion is the place to go if you have a picture of that dream wedding gown but can't find it anywhere. She can find you virtually every line of gown made, some within a matter of hours from buyers across the country.

Bridal Veil Fashions: They can find a gown for you

Disappointed because you've seen a picture of your dream bridal gown, but don't have the slightest idea where to find it?

The solution is in a trip to Bridal Veil Fashions, 1203 41st Avenue in Capitola. You'll not only find a great selection of bridal gowns in stock, but owner Joanne Cecchettini has access to virtually every line of gown made, with most available in two to three weeks. Her buyers in New York have even been able to locate a gown on the basis of a vague description in just three hours.

Why does Joanne go to all that trouble, you ask. For Joanne, the answer lies in a commitment to excellence in service.

When you enter Joanne's shop, you'll be treated like one of the family. "We're a very family-oriented store and when girls come in I talk to them like they're my own children," she explains.

Joanne, who has been in the bridal business for nine years, says very formal, orante gowns with long trains, complemented by ornate wreath headpieces are in style for spring.

But, she adds that what's in style isn't necessarily right for everyone. A bridal gown must fit the bride's personality, body type and budget and that's where she and her staff, daughter Lisa, and Maria Mainwaring can help. They are honest with their customers and work hard at finding the perfect dress for each bride. To ensure a perfect fit, a seamstress is on duty at the store all the time.

However, Bridal Veil Fashions isn't for brides only. It's a complete bridal store, able to outfit the whole wedding party. Here you'll find hundreds of bridesmaid's, flower girl and mother's gowns as well as dresses for every formal occasion from proms to parties. They rent and sell tuxedos as well as wedding invitations and offer a bridal consulting service with referrals for everything from florists and photographers to priests. Joanne adds, "I never make a recommendation unless I've seen their work for myself."

Of course, Bridal Veil Fashions carries all the accessories you'll need to complement the gowns with everything from hats, veils and gloves to an extensive selection of dyeable shoes in sizes 4 to 12. Most shoes can be dyed overnight.

It's worth making a drive to Capitola for the incomparable service and selection you'll find at Bridal Veil Fashions. The store is open from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday (Thursday until 9 p.m.); Sundays and evenings by appointment. Call 475-6777.

La Provence: The romance of France

Exquisite French cuisine coupled with the charm and romance of an outdoor cafe in France make La Provence, in the American Tin Cannery, one of the most popular restaurants on the peninsula.

Exquisite French cuisine coupled with the charm and romance of an outdoor cafe in Southern France make La Provence, located in the American Tin Cannery, one of the peninsula's most popular restaurants.

Whether it's lunch or dinner, you'll dine in an atmosphere that's quaint, comfortable and romantic, yet never stuffy. Colorful murals depicting the countryside in Southern France grace the walls and a myriad of potted plants and flowers lend the aura of an outdoor cafe. In the evening, the twinkling lights of Monterey Bay complete the decor.

But atmosphere means little without delicious food. Restaurateur Pierre Coutou knows that (he owned a very successful restaurant for years in Aix-en-Provence, near Marseilles) and he's out to dispel the myth that French dining means small portions, heavy sauces and foods that are much too rich. At La Provence, they do things a different way, using advanced cooking techniques and health-conscious recipes. Sauces are light and recipes include only the freshest vegetables and herbs.

To complement your meal, La Provence offers a nice selection of domestic and French wines.

Best of all are the traditional French desserts you'll find at La Provence. They're made fresh daily from scratch and include pastries, chocolate cake, lemon tarts (made fresh twice daily), caramel custard and many more.

La Provence opens for lunch at 11 a.m. daily. Tea, espresso and pastries are served in the afternoon, and dinner in the evening. A bar menu is available from 11:30 a.m. until closing, and the cafe features a very good Sunday brunch.

Live entertainment is provided every Friday and Saturday nights. Light jazz and French songs are featured.

Enjoy an evening in France tonight with a short trip to La Provence. Call 649-0707 for reservations. All major credit cards are accepted.

Hollins House's restaurant and grounds are available for weddings and receptions year round. Buffets and formal dinners can also be arranged. For information or reservations call 425-1244.

Your dreams become reality when you visit Hollins House

The beautiful weather conditions and outstanding scenery of the Monterey Peninsula and surrounding areas provide a perfect background for the outdoor wedding. Every spring and summer bride must consider, at least once, the possibility of a garden wedding...strolling down a grassy aisle to a flower-covered white lattice gazebo to exchange wedding vows.

At Hollins House in Santa Cruz, the dream becomes reality. The gazebo in the garden behind the Hollins House Restaurant is an exquisite al fresco setting with ample room for seating with unimpeded views of the bride and groom throughout the ceremony.

The reception can also be held outdoors, or the restaurant has accommodations such as the Marion Hollins Room with bay windows overlooking the Pasatiempo golf course and the sparkling blue Pacific Ocean, available for formal dinners.

Any bride who has an affinity for the gracious living of the 1930s can resurrect the past of Pasatiempo, which was originally built by championship golfer Marion Hollins in 1929. A social center for the rich and famous throughout most of the '30s, Pasatiempo once had polo grounds, tennis courts, bridle trails, a swimming pool and steeplechase track in addition to the golf course. Although most of those structures have disappeared, the spirit of gracious living still resides at Hollins House.

Just ask for Flor de Carmel, they always deliver the goods

When the occasion calls for flowers, you can count on Flor de Carmel to deliver the perfect arrangement.

Of course this shop can do beautiful things with traditional flowers and arrangements, but they're especially gifted when it comes to using unusual and exotic flowers in original and contemporary designs.

Such creativity comes in large measure from the experience of owner Harry Liddic. Liddic, who has owned the shop for five years, has 16 years' experience in the floral business working with some of the largest and most respected shops in the United States.

A flair for design, attention to detail and personal service make Flor de Carmel a natural choice for weddings. They visit the site of the wedding and reception, talk with the bride, and match the floral designs to the colors involved, always providing a natural but elegant complement to the event. It's worth noting that for large weddings, Flor de Carmel has spiral candelabras available for use.

For Easter, the shop is featuring a special on long-lasting Asiatic lilies.

For all your floral needs, visit Flor de Carmel located on the third (that's the top) floor of the Carmel Plaza. The shop is open 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday; noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

The Wedding Connection

You're getting married! As if the excitement of planning your life together weren't enough, you now find that you have to plan your wedding.

Piece of cake? Sure, if you have the time and the inclination to deal with caterers, musicians, photographers, florists, bakeries, reception centers, invitation engravers...WAIT! Isn't there someone who can help you do all of this? The bride and her mother used to spend weeks and months planning the perfect wedding, and many still do, enjoying every minute. But a lot of today's women are finding that someone like Denise Kirchner, owner of The Wedding Connection, can make fitting even the most grandiose wedding into their present careers and life plans a time- and frustration-saving wonder.

The amazing fact is that Denise charges the brides nothing at all for her planning and consultation assistance. "I know it sounds amazing," says Denise, "but it's true." The Wedding Connection operates on a commission basis with the vendors who supply all of your wedding needs, much like travel agents do. It never costs the bride any more than if she had secured the services herself, but saves her time for more important things...like relaxing and enjoying a beautiful wedding and reception planned especially for her.

Denise's experience in planning creative theme dinner parties, private yacht cruises, picnics, gala dinner dances and business meetings and conferences is perfectly suited to planning weddings from the most intimate (just the two of you?) to a Cecil B. DeMille extravaganza.

So if attending your own wedding sounds like fun, but planning it sounds like hard work and more time-consuming than you need, call Denise. The Wedding Connection, 408-688-0355.

J.L. Stationers has a large selection of wedding invitations that are not only colorful, but defy tradition. The classic engraved invitations are also available, of course, as are traditional trimmings such as toasting glasses and keepsake albums.

Go for the non-traditional at J.L. Stationers

Flamingo pink, turquoise and lavender are not just the colors of Miami Vice. They have moved into the arena of the wedding invitation. Remember when you could tell it was a wedding invitation in the mail before you even opened the envelope? Well, according to Lu Ann Caylor, owner of J.L. Stationers with husband Jim, "the trend is moving away from the traditional engraved invitation."

While the classic is still available, today's couple can also select from custom invitations in a variety of colors and styles and add their photograph or select a poem.

Asked what advice she would have for couples planning a wedding, Lu Ann's first words were "plan ahead." "With the largest selection of invitations ever available, it often takes a couple two to three weeks just to decide which one to select. After they are ordered, delivery is expected in three weeks, and they should be mailed a month in advance."

To assist their couples, Lu Ann has a free bridal guide available called "Carefree Weddings," with a checklist for brides. In addition to invitations, Lu Ann and Jim's stores, J.L. Stationers at 230 Del Monte Center and Old Monterey Hallmark at 452 Alvarado, also offer a full line of shower invitations, thank you and informal notes and custom announcements.
